News..... Up to the moment news on what's happening on the Amiga scene. We preview

We've compiled the most informative and comprehensive set of games charts that you could ever hope to see. If there's a game that you're thinking of checking out then look no further.

soon-to-be-released games and give you the low down on their development.

lion cover disk

Once again, we're proud to present yet another pair of sexy disks to grace the cover of our universally revered magazine, with something to please everyone! First up, we have some right rattling fun in Baby Jo from Loriciel along with Delphine's graphically stunning Another World. On the second unfeasibly superb offering you can test your pillaging and plundering prowess in Heimdall from Core before struggling as the lone Clone Warrior in Vulture's Seigemaster.

Boaait's Domain

If adventures are your love and you're having a few problems with your favourite game then your best bet is to ask the Boggit. You can guarantee that he'll have all the answers.

IN Progress Speciai

Once again AA brings you the latest news of the major games currently in the pipeline. This month we take a look at the latest developments at System 3 including Silly Putty and Turbo Charge with an in-depth study at the creation of Myth. We also have a sneak preview of the role-playing crusade from Gremlin.

You've seen the films, read the book and now you can check out the Godfather game review in this month's mag before entering our meravigliosa compo to win a week-end holiday for two in Sicily, the home of the Mafia. Also in association with U.S. Gold there are piles of Godfather goodies for five runners-up.

Another massive helping of hints, tips and tricks to help you past those devilishly difficult sections of your favourite games. This time round we help you through 20 levels of Storm's Rodland and give you a detailed low down on the first two levels of the Blues Brothers' mission from God. We also provide you with the vital co-ordinates for Activision's classic, Hunter.

After sorting through the hardly feasible abundance of PD demos received over the last month, Peter Lee displays the fruits of his labours!

This is the page that you write! So if you've got anything interesting to say about the mag or anything concerning Amiga gaming - good, bad or ugly - drop us a line. We are sorry that we can't return any of your letters but we do give a prize for the best ones we show, namely the game of your choice!

TEAM VANKEE II THE PACIFIC ISLANDS

The follow-up to Team Yankee, Empire's highly successful tank simulator of 1990 is due for completion in October 1991. The original Team Yankee game saw you taking command of a squadron of tanks that had to push back Russian tank units over a series of missions that progressed in difficulty as you continued through.

Team Yankee II is set on a series of islands in the Pacific which have been overrun by Russian forces. The player, in command of Team Yankee, must try and regain all the islands in a series of strategic tank battles. As each island is reached the player can choose the area of landing, and then the order in which area on the island is attacked. These choices will be crucial to the outcome of the game since they all effect the time it will take to subdue the enemy.

The player is also responsible for the purchase and renewal of equipment and men between each battle. Funds are generated according to the performance of the whole team in action.

Certain features of tank control have been upgraded, building and other objects can now be destroyed under missile attack and the Russian strategy has been made considerably more sophisticated. The game won't be available for some time yet but we'll keep you informed of any new developments.

CICIE ACTION

cean have been producing some pretty hot games over the last few months and look set to continue this trend with two new releases entitled Smash TV and WWF, which stands for World Wrestling Foundation if you didn't know. Both are due for release pretty soon, so here's just a sneaky preview. No price has yet been announced, for either game.

(Above Right) The enemy just keep on coming. Fortunately, there are plenty of special weapons that can be collected and then used against them.

(Right) Here we see just one of the special weapons in use. This one fires out shurikens that are made of fire.

SQUARE EYES

The year is 1999 and sport has become more than just a harmless competitive dual. The TV stations have started to create their own sports but with a more sinister theme. Those that contain the most blood and guts are the ones that are securing the ratings.

Unfortunately, competition has now become so great that the sports have become nothing more than blood baths. The prizes, however, are so great that competitors will risk life and limb in their quest for victory.

Due to the extreme requirements of the game, participants are required to be of great physical fitness – a case of only the strongest survive!

The game has been converted from the coin-op and features 50 interchanging arenas over three levels as well as extensive firepower possibilities. Two players can participate simultaneously as they battle to destroy the opponents and win the prizes.

(Left) You'll have to be wise about using the weapons at the right time. The bazooka, for instance can be used to take out large units of the enemy.

Wrestling games were the rage a few years back and now Ocean look set to re-establish the trend with WWF which stands for World Wrestling Federation.

There are two wrestlers to choose from and these are Hulk Hogan, billed as the ultimate warrior, and the British Bulldog. In WWF you must wrestle your way through the ratings fighting some pretty hard chaps in the process. Those that stand against you include Sgt Slaughter and Warlord as well as many others.

But this is American wrestling where anything goes and normally does. Chairs are potential weapons and can be dragged into the ring and used by your wrestler to knock the other senseless.

Each character comes with his own particular style. There are plenty of different moves that need to be mastered before advancing in the ratings and eventually becoming Wrestling Champion of the world. The moves are all accessed through combinations of joystick movement. Such moves as the piledriver, leaping kick and overhead throw are all included.

As in real wrestling, the ropes can be used to spring into the ring and smash against your opponent hopefully knocking him to the floor so you can attempt a hold.

You'll have to time the leap kick just right, otherwise you'll fall to the floor and may be held. Throw your opponent into the ropes and as he comes back leap into the air and smash his nose in. Luverly!

There are plenty of different moves to master and this is just one of them – the high throw. Pick up the opponent, put him over your shoulder and then throw him until his brains ooze out.

Norse legend tells of a time when the Gods of Valhalla and Asgard created a race known as the Vikings. Born to represent his people at the battle of Ragnorak, Heimdall must first fight, solve puzzles and explore the Viking world to find the weapons of the Gods.

THE BRAINIES

Hello, good atternoon and welcome to the Brainles. These guys will really crack you up. Their IQs are lust so goddam high!

Brainies come in four bright colours. They have waddly little feet, out-sized cutesy hands and big, moist 'hug me' eyes.

Trouble is, the Brainies are from somewhere situated deep in space. They also have insatiable appetites, huge teeth, the disposition of a large, frustrated Rottweiller and quite remarkable reproductive capabilities. In short, the world is infested with these hungry little balls of attractively packaged nastiness!

You must save the planet by leading them to special tranquillising sleeper cells.

Unfortunately, the brainies will only obey certain kinds of instructions and once moving they will not stop until they bump up against something very solid and very immovable.

The overall object of the game is to pursue the increasingly angry and cunning Brainies over all 100 levels to discover the really weird secret of the Brainies' origins. Brainies will be available from Palace in January 1992 and will cost £25.99.

CAN YOU FEEL THE FORCE?

f anyone out there remembers that old classic 8-bit release called Green Beret then Fireforce from Electronic Zoo should bring back some pretty happy memories.

Fireforce was signed up about seven weeks ago along with the two guys who are programming it called Dave and Steve. Although very similar in style to Green Beret, Fireforce is actually based on airborne ranger.

You play a Rambo-style character who must fight his way through several levels of danger and enemy soldiers. Fortunately, weapons can be collected along the way and used to destroy things such as gun towers, lorries and oil drums. As you complete several missions with a variety of different objectives, such as destroying enemy, truck convoys and hideouts, you gain higher ranking and receive many medals and promotions enabling you to continue onto more physically demanding missions.

The action is viewed side on with the screen scrolling from right to left with the status bar situated below the main play area.

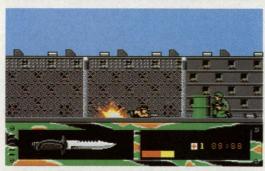

The main character is dressed in camouflage and armed with deadly weapons. He is allocated an energy bar which decreases every time he is hit.

He is, however, not only armed with machine guns and bazookas but a deadly, razor-sharp knife which he uses to slice open the enemy's throats.

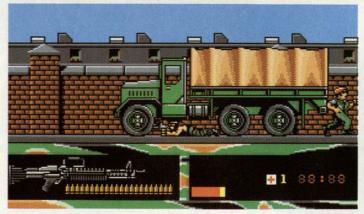

As each weapon is collected it is displayed in a window to the bottom left of the screen.

Although we've only seen a small section of the game it is looking extremely good and shood keep fans of that type of genre entertained for ages. Hopefully we should have a full review of Fireforce in the next issue. The price is likely to be around £25.99.

ON ME 'EAD. SON

Due for release any moment now is the next game from Zeppelin Games. Graeme Souness' Soccer is a football game with a difference, instead of sprites, all the action is drawn with the use of vector graphics.

Therefore, not only will you be able to view that game from any desired angle but details such as the corner flags and pitch lines can be turned on or off to suit. This will also effect the speed at which the game runs, you get to choose your ideal level of detail.

All of the usual features associated with football will be included such as corner kicks, strip designs, penalty shoot-outs and lots of other stuff. Hopefully we will have a copy for review by the next issue comes around so keep 'empeeled for more info.

Graeme Souness' Soccer uses real vectors to show the action as you kick a poor defenceless ball around the field. You will be able to view the game from six different camera angles that can be selected at any stage of the game.

WHAT'S ON THE BOX?

Channel Four are set to screen a ten part series dedicated to all aspects of computer gaming. It will be set out in a magazine style format and will include reviews, previews, interviews, hints and tips, competitions and all of the other usual stuff.

Gamesmaster will appear on your screen every Tuesday from the 31st of December at 6.30pm. Watch it while you munch on your sausages and chips!

Although filming has already started there is still a chance to get in on the action and become part of the live audience.

RENEGADE IS IN CHAOS

Gods and Magic Pockets the Bitmap Brothers are already working on their next chart-topping release, Chaos Engine. Using ideas from Gods and Pockets they have developed the Artificial Intelligence further for this superb all action role-playing game.

The computer will take control of some of the participants (the game can handle from one to three players in total with the computer moving the unused characters) as well as all of the aliens that you will inevitably encounter.

The principle of the Chaos Engine is to provide users with an action game that utilises features of both role-playing and shoot'emup games. As you progress through the game you will able to develop and personalise your characters to your own needs. They will begin to behave in their own style with their own characteristics that are effected by the way that you play the early stages of the adventure.

(Below) The forest level is jam packed with a more rural type of alien. Along the way you will also encounter caves that allow you you to venture underground and into dark, dank tunnels full of even more things to kill.

The game is already in operation as can be seen in the development version of the product shown in the screen shots and hopefully a finished version will appear around early 1992. Watch these pages for more information and a full review.

(Below) The industrial level will feature a whole host of mechanical monstrosities to blast and get blasted by. As you battle through the urban environment your characters will adapt and develop to suit your style of play.

own at their offices in Sheffield, Gremlin Graphics are getting a little excited having secured the world rights for a game based on the hair-raising exploits of the Formula One racing driver, Nigel Mansell.

For Gremlin, the opportunity to (Below) Along with two new compilations, Gremlin are working on yet another racing game. This one is to be based around the exploits of "Our Nige" and is set to be the best thing yet from the Sheffield company. build a Grand Prix game on such an exciting racing personality will be the culmination of many years' hard work in seeking to develop the perfect racing game. Precise details are being kept under wraps but Gremlin are confident that when it is finished in 1992 it will be the top Formula One simulation.

Also from Gremlin for the christmas period are two new compilations. Chart Attack One will feature games across a wide spread of categories: Lotus Esprit Turbo Challenge, Ghouls and Ghosts, James Pond and Venus the Fly Trap. The second, Four Wheel Drive, features only racing games: Lotus Esprit Turbo Challenge (again), Team Suzuki, Toyota Celica GT4 Rally and finally Combo Racer.

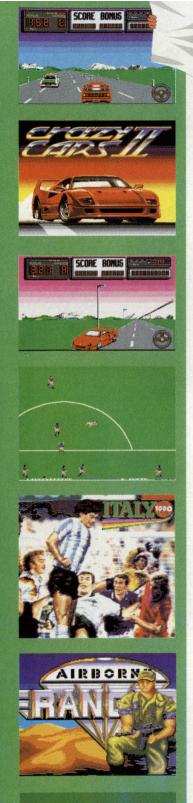

With the superb Williams Renault car under his bottom, Nigel Mansell is doing extremely well in the current Formula One World Championships. By the time you read this it will be all over, has he done enough to gain the coveted title?

S Gold never stop. As well as the multitude of big releases, they have got lined up for the next few months (Bonanza Brothers, Mega Twins, Another World and so on) they are also catering for those who don't have an endless supply of money(I think that's most people I know of).

Due to hit the streets any minute now are three compilations that contain a total of 16 hot releases from the distant (and not so distant) past.

This is the first of the releases and contains some very well known games. In total, the entire package received over 40 awards of one kind or another when the games were first released. Turrican II is a shoot'emup/platform game that received 86% when it was reviewed in AA. Next up is ST Dragon, a horizontally scrolling shooty game.

SWIV has set new standards with its Dynamic Loading System, the action never stops. Finally, to round things off, there is Night Shift. An extremely good package with something for everyone.

SUPER SIM PACK

The second release contains a good mix of games. International 3D Tennis should keep any Wimbledon fan happy for hours on end, Crazy Cars II will satisfy anybody who has fancied a go of a Ferrari, Italy 1990 will help you relive classic moments of the last World Cup and finally Airborne Ranger sees you jumping from a plane to infiltrate an enemy base.

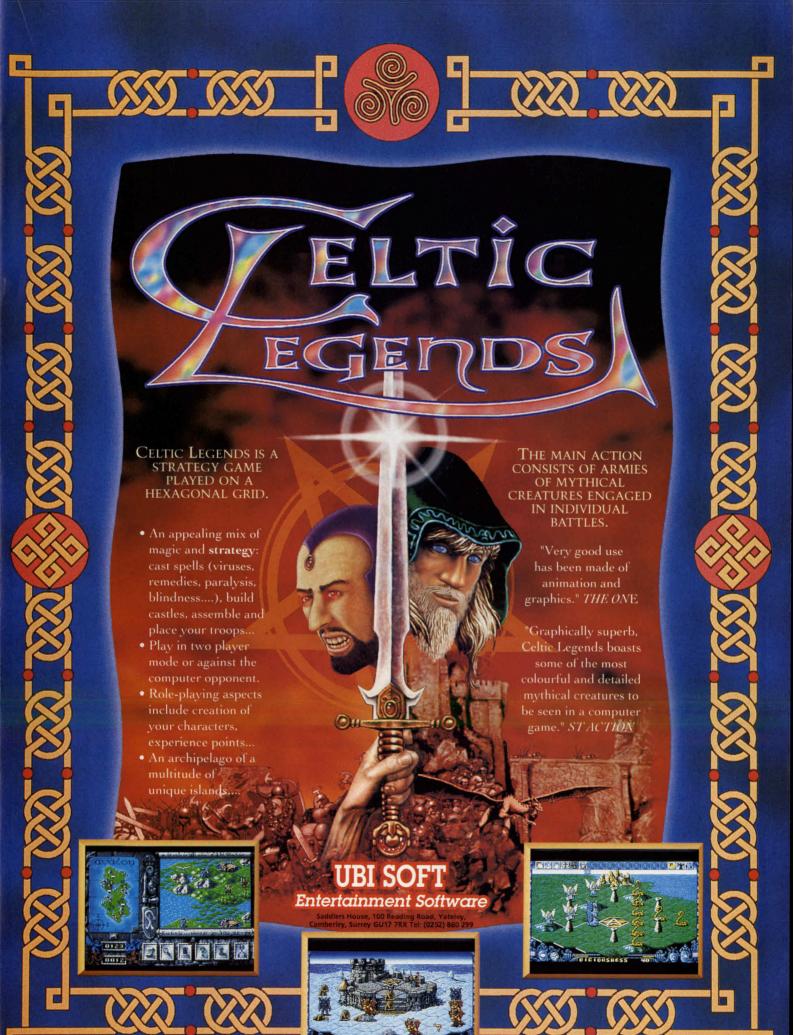

CAPCOM COLLECTION

This is the biggest compilation I've seen for a long time (in fact ever! To list each in detail would take up too much space, but here is quick run down. Strider kicks off the action followed by UN Squadron, Last Duel, Forgotten Worlds, Ghouls 'n' Ghosts, Dynasty Wars, LED Storm and finally Strider II. This is a truly superb package.

With Xmas looming on the horizon many of you'll be after new games to play over the hols. As well as the new beat'em-up from MegaSoft (400 levels of parallax scrolling and no gameplay) why not ask for one of these to fill your stocking. They'll keep you going until the summer at least!

If there's a game currently on the market that you're thinking of checking out, why not consult our unique Super League scoring system, renowned throughout the whole industry, before parting with your hard earned brass? Each month we compare the latest releases against classic games from the past.

Midway through the level, Jo is confronted by a duck who emerges from the ground. Watch out for the secret treasure he says, and doesn't he look a little similar to Daffy Duck?

FOLD

Likkle Billy

Fortunately, Baby Jo isn't without help in his quest to try and keep his botty clean and his tummy full. There's plenty of toys lying around for him to collect and use against the various creatures of the back garden. The most common of these is the trusty rattle. Wielding it in his right hand, he can bash all of the animals in true baby style, inflicting huge amounts of damage and then pleading innocence.

However, by far the best aid is the super-nappy. Get Jo to slip into this designer poo holder and he will be invincible for a short amount of time, being able to walk on fire and beat up monsters.

At last you find a nappy. If you don't collect enough of these, you'll start to really pong and get a nappy rash.

Dealing with Dangers

The hard thing in Baby Jo isn't getting hold of regular supplies of nappies and milk, it's staying out of trouble — and believe me there's plenty of it. Fires are rife and will sap Jo's energy rapidly, and the various monsters will all be out to get their revenge on Jo.

The weather conditions can be nasty at times, and unfortunately Jo turns out to be a very good conductor when there's lightning around. But Jo's pretty tough for his age and he can take quite a bit of pain before he breaks down in tears, and if he cries more than three times then it's the end of the road for Jo.

The way that Baby-Jo acts when he loses too much energy is quite funny. Here we see him shooting into the air with his nappy on fire. Very painful!

Ooo! What could be inside that scrummy looking present? Well, it could be good or bad so take it easy when you open it.

DISK 19 & 20

Get ready for some real explosive hyper action in this month's issue. Yet again we've managed to acquire a mega-brilliant line up of demo disks that should appeal to any games player in the entire universe, so remove your disks from the curvaceous cover and get them straight into that drive of yours, buddles. Have a splendiferously great time and get ready for next month's ridiculously festive Christmas line-up.

Although you lot should know this by now, it's amazing how many of you forget. Before you do anything with the demo disk, put it on write protect! On top of that, before you insert the disk into your Amiga make sure the computer has been turned off for at least 30 seconds. This way there's no chance of your disk getting a virus.

As for loading the demo, it's pretty simple. Insert the disk into the drive. Then when the cursor appears, simply type BABY-JO (with the hyphen) and press return. Now the demo will load automatically and be ready for you to play.

Always write protect your disk and turn your Amiga off for 30 seconds after playing the demo. This will reduce the chances of virus infection.

RFAIING

Just when you thought everything was going to be plain sailing, a rather large animal drops in front of you blocking your path. If I was you I wouldn't hang around to see what's going to happen.

Loading this quite superb Another World demo is simplicity itself, all that you have to do is put your Amiga Action coverdisk number 19 into your internal drive and switch on your Amiga. After an unfeasibly short while an Amiga Dos header will appear on screen. This is then shortly followed by a cursor prompting you to type in the following word: AWDEMO

Next press the RETURN key and wait for the animated intro to begin. After the intro you can play the game, but be warned. Once you've died you'll have to watch the animated intro again which takes quite a while. But considering it's so damn good, we don't think you'll mind too much.

FOLD

Always write protect your disk and turn your Amiga off for 30 seconds after playing the demo. This will reduce the chances of virus infection.

After you've stopped drooling over the fantastic intro sequence you're probably going to want to try this tasty game out for your self. Well, the controls are pretty easy to pick up really with all the obvious movements of the joystick making your man walk left and right. If you press the fire button while walking he will start to run as fast as he can helping you get away from anything nasty that might turn up

Pressing the fire button on its own makes your man kick, and pulling down and firing makes him do a sweeping kick along the ground. Lastly, a diagonally upward movement makes him jump. That's about it for the demo, although the finished game will contain a few other moves but you'll find that out when you buy the game - you'll have to once you've played this amazing demo!

Start swimming! When you arrive in the other world you'll be up to your neck in it - and water as well. So get out before you run out

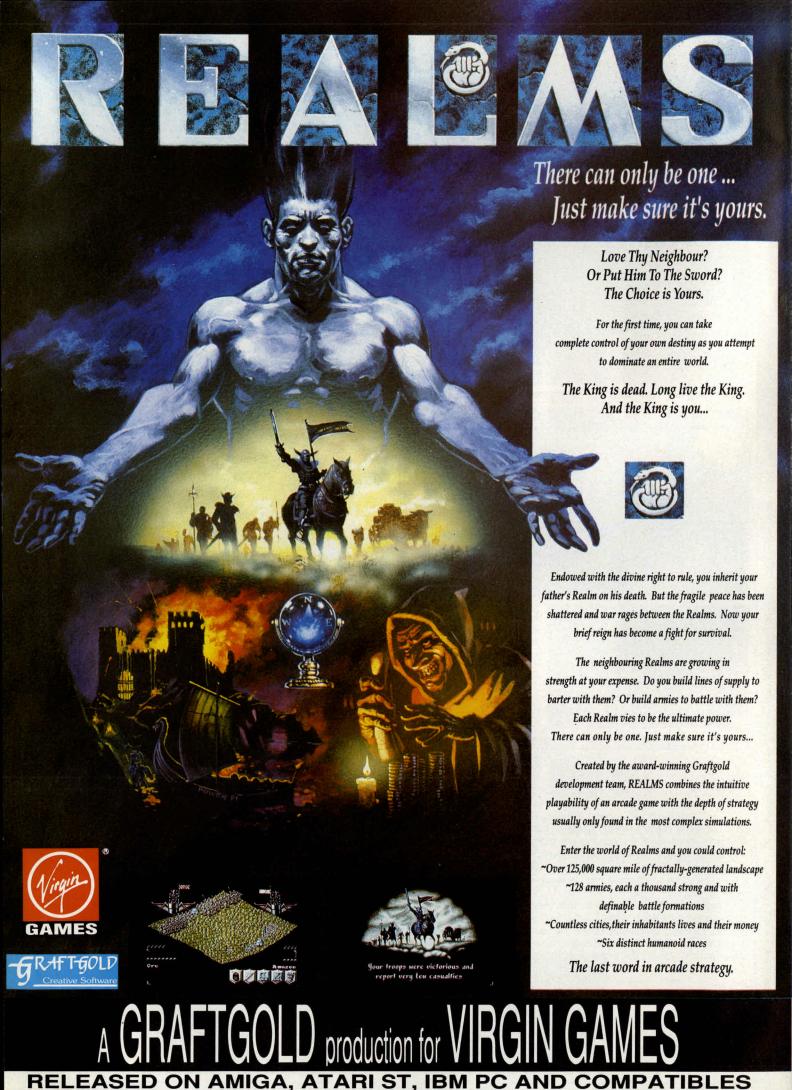

For the time that Delphine have been in the software industry they haven't released an awful lot of games. But the ones they have brought out have been real corkers. Future Wars was their most famous product and due its enormous success Operation Stealth, another superb adventure, was soon available.

Since then they have been pretty quiet, but now they're back and better than ever. Another World presents you with graphics of the standard seen in Dragon's Lair but includes gameplay makes the game a joy to play. And since the Amiga Action team saw the demo we've been going mad waiting for the finished version to arrive.

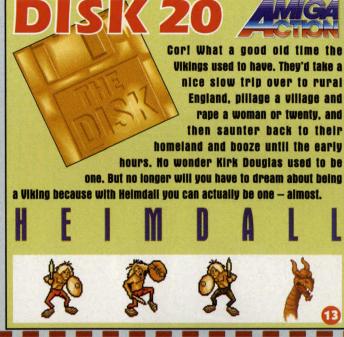

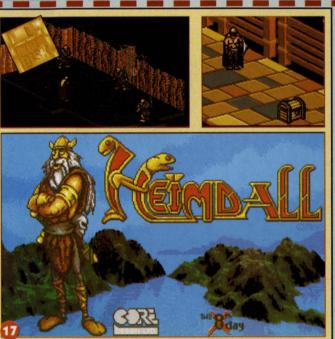

Working away on your computer, you don't realise what's in store for you. And by the time you find out it will he too late.

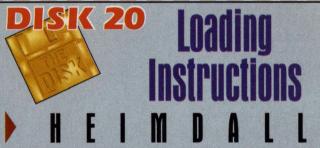

VIRGIN GAMES LTD 338A LADBROKE GROVE LONDON W10 5AH

Loading Heimdall could be easier, but it isn't. All you need to do is insert disk 20 into your Amiga drive and power up. Once the cursor appears type the word AXE and press the RETURN key.

Always write protect your disk and turn your Amiga off for 30 seconds after playing the demo. This will reduce the chances of virus infection.

Heimdall the Game

As you will have probably noticed, the mega Heimdall is reviewed in this issue of Amiga Action. So once you've had a go of the demo and sampled the amazing graphics and sound you can then see what we thought of the rest of the game.

The axe throwing stage is just one of three sub games in Heimdall that test your skills as a Viking. The better you do in these tests the more Vikings you will impress, thus you'll have a lot more men to choose from when vou select the five Vikings that are going to accompany in the forthcoming adventure.

Fun with Women

Vikings had the utmost respect for their women, and they would go to any lengths to prove their worth to them. One test that they would perform was the axe throwing contest. To prove that they were a worthy enough warrior for their fair lass they would attempt to chop off the woman's locks of hair with several axes. If they succeeded they were worthy enough for the damsel. If they failed it usually meant it wasn't her hair that the axe cut.

All you have to do in this demo is cut all eight strands of hair with ten axes. It might sound easy, but it's not and it should take you a fair while to beat it.

Slegemaster recreates part of the legend of the Clone Warriors. The complete tale covers their birth by the Wise One, Clonus, How they escaped from his cruel slavery and settled in the land which they simply called Home, the treachery of the other dwellers there, and right through to the final battle when Home was taken away from them and they had to regain it.

Loading Siegemaster is dead dead easy. Put your Amiga Action coverdisk (number 20) into your internal drive and turn on your Amiga. After a short spell of time a cursor will appear, prompting you to type in the following words:

ALOAD SIEGEMASTER

And remember, don't ever forget to press RETURN. Unfortunately, a teeny weeny bit of corruption has corrupted the main screen and we don't know why. Anyway, it doesn't cover any important icons so simply ignore it. Please don't ring in and shout about it 'cos there's absolutely nothing we can do to cure the problem. You control a force of up to 10 Clone Warriors in this epic fight for revenge against earlier treachery. You start with just three warriors, one armed with a bow, and two armed with swords and light shields. You must quickly learn how to live off the land, as well as the ancient art of storming castles with hooks and rope.

Help is at hand as the Wise One will guide you with information as to what you should achieve next. You will need to use your cunning as quite often there is more than one solution to a problem.

But be warned the evil that now inhabits Home is active.

It will not sit back and watch. provoke conflict.

Before you start each mission the Wise One will give all the necessary information that you will need to know. Which unfortunately is not a lot.

Boggit's Domain

Well, so much for a weekend away from the Great Wood. I just fancied nipping over to Riverhead for some shopping, (there's not a bit of Dragon's Blood in the house), and then I find that my magic carpet won't start. I spent all morning running through the shrubbery trying to bump-start it, and now I'm covered in mud and nettles.

The only bright spot to the day was the package which the gobin postman brought this morning. Some kindly soul sent me a demo cassette of the wonderful sound which can be achieved from an IBM PC if you fit a super, hi-tech sound card to it for only £140. Well I've never heard such a load of 'plinky-plonk' rubbish in all my life. It really cheered me up.

At one point I thought that this was going to be a quiet month, but not only did the mail pour in at the last minute, but with it came one of the best RPGs I've ever played. Read on...

broke into a London Electronics Warehouse which was holding 10,000 Atari ST computers ready for the Christmas shopping season.

The thieves left shortly afterwards, having stolen the nightwatchman's sandwiches.

A Discouraging Word... Cruise for A Corpse.

The fact that this eye-popping graphic adventure is French in no way prejudices my view of the game, (the hell it doesn't!) but before you all rush out and spend your gold on it I'd just like to say a just like to say a discouraging word. This game is another in the long line of 'Who-Dunnit' mysteries in which you quiz various the suspects as to their whereabouts on the evening of the 'orrible murder'.

Inevitably this involves you in a lot of 'question and answer' sessions which move very slowly. It also involves the reading of a fair bit of text.

It soon becomes obvious that in creating the English version of this game, our gallant French allies spared no expense and invested heavily in a copy of, 'English - As She Is Spoke'. I've never understand why foreigners don't find a native Englishman and bung him a fiver to spend a few minutes reading the translation – for that is all it would take to point out the obvious howlers. I mean, for a fiver, even I would help the French.

For a very large part of the game you spend what seems like forever moving between one suspect and the next, asking them the same questions. Unfortunately there appears to be no option which allows you to knee the lying French gits in the groin and so speed up the process of obtaining a confession. Yes the scenery is beautiful, and the animation is excellent, but the action is as slow as watching the paint on an oil painting dry. From what I can gather from one reader's letter there are also a few bugs in the game. After the game clock passes 10:20 the 'Map' facility becomes dodgy, then to make matters worse the 'Save Game' facility ceases to work.

The one thing you can do to fix the problem is to let the game run through the complete introduction, (including the titles) when you boot up then the problems disappear.

BOGGIT'S MAILBAG

The Riddle of the Sorceror's Box

I am writing to ask if you've ever played Sorceror from Infocom? I'm having problems and require a few hints – well lots of hints actually.

I have a feeling that the way out of the Guild Hall is something to do with the trunk in the basement, but it has a code of five different buttons which must be pressed to open it. With five buttons I don't think I'm ever going to find the correct combination.

If you haven't played Sorceror maybe you could put me in contact with the writers.

P.S. Why are all your readers men? Am I the only girl that owns an Amiga?

Maxine Chapman

Well the good news is that you are correct that you need to open the trunk, and there are two ways you can do this

The first is to sit down with a pencil and paper and write down all of the possible combinations of the five codes and all of the colours available, then try typing them in to the game. Archimedes the owl reckons that he could do that in about six months.

The other, quicker, way is to use the 'infotator' which came with the game. The code to open the trunk is in the anti-piracy protection for this game. Read the journal to find the current animal then look up the correct code using the 'infotator'.

For example If the current code was DRYAD then you press black, gray, white, red, red. Do you still want me to introduce you to the writers of the game?

these people must be, (it all seems so simple when you explain it!).

Unfortunately I have now discovered that these people are all more intelligent than me because I am still stuck on the USS Love Tug. In my inventory I have the swimsuit, wad o' dough, passport, onklunk, sewing kit, spinach dip, wig and bikini top, and I am at the lifeboat but cannot work out how to lower it. Since every question I have read in your column concerns events after this point, imagine how terribly inadequate I feel!

Please help me to face society again and let me benefit from your great wisdom.

D. Sharp, Coventry

When you think of all the trouble I went through to get onboard this ship, and now all you want to do get off. Typical human behaviour.

The controls for the lifeboat have wisely been put in a safe place, so the likes of you can't fiddle with them. The Captain on the bridge is guarding the lever which you seek, and only someone really sneaky will be able to creep past him and move it. I suspect you'll have no trouble at all.

Time Warp in the Outback

I have written to describe the time warp which we often find ourselves in over here. Apart from the problem that we usually get magazines from overseas nearly three months late, we often have a bigger time lag in getting decent software. When we finally get our hot little hands on a new release it is often not particularly new anymore, as we have often read the solutions in mags already. The better the program the longer it seems to take to lob over here.

We did manage somehow to get Eye of the Beholder around the same release date as you guys. U.S. software is usually quite fast. It was great for my mate and I to complete it while still reading of it as a new release.

I haven't decided yet if it was a touch easy or whether it was just so user-friendly that we managed to complete it quite a respectable time.

I was one of the few people who didn't have Dungeon Master (I only just upgraded my memory) and upon playing it after EOTB I found it not just more demanding, (which is fair enough because I like a challenge) but a lot harder to use. Loading and saving is much easier in EOTB. Is there any news of the sequel to EOTB?

CONTINUED... I'm sorry to hear that it takes so long for my scrolls to reach you, so I'll bang the keys on the wordprocessor a bit harder to make sure that it all stays as fresh as possible. I don't remember that the saving and loading was any problem in Dungeon Master. The only thing which gave me grief was that all of your characters had to die before you could reload. This meant that if you wanted to restart you had to kill your own men - something which always made me feel like a realy nastyl slimeball! There is no hard news when EOTB II will be released, but give them a chance. Why not try Chaos Strikes Back until then? Round and Round the immortal's Magic Triangle

I have a problem with Electronic Arts' brilliant game The Immortal. I can't get past the end of Level 4. I have got the three rings which should be placed 'clockwise around the triangle' in the last room.

I have tried every combination but nothing seems to happen (except sometimes the screen flashes). Is my game faulty or can you tell me what to do?

Markus Nevala, Finland

I fear there is some confusion here. My official solution says that you must give ANA 'the' ring (singlar!) then walk round the triangle three times. To find out which one of us had got the correct story I decided to complete Level 4 for myself.

I started over an hour ago and I've finally given in. I've lost count of the number of times that I've been eaten by giant worms and toasted by flaming torches.

My fingers are quivering and my nerves are shot. I remember now why I hate arcade games. This damn game is impossible for anyone who isn't a overactive octopus.

Just in case you still can't get it right, then I'll give you the code to enable you to jump straight along to Level 5 and forget all about the silly rings and things. I'm so good to you! Level 5 D4BFD41000EB0.

Stuck in Hole in Delphine's Future Wars

Please help me before I break one of the sacred Ten Commandments (well my neighbor's ox is quite impressive!). My problem lies in that golden oldie of a game - Future Wars by Delphine. I have got into the building through the window and into the bathroom. Placed a bucket of water above the door and entered the map room, but from here, I can get absolutely nowhere else.

Objects I have found include insecticide, plastic bag, key, flag, typewriter and sheaf of papers. Obviously I have tried using most of the objects on everything, even to the extent of using the plastic bag on the hero's head but even this was to no avail.

Mark Walbank, Yeadon

This is a tiny problem. The solution is also tiny which is why you are having a problem. The little flag which you found in the toilet is meant to be stuck into the wall map in the room next door. If you examine the map, the game will create yet another window this time showing an enlarged map section in which the tiny hole can be found.

Move the mouse pointer around carefully and it will reveal itself. The sooner you get the flag stuck into that hole the quicker you'll be able to move on and get yourself stuck in the next one.

Do You know the Secret's of The Beholder's Special Quests?

I have recently been playing Eye of the Beholder which I completed without too much problem (and to prove it I enclose a save disk).

As I was wandering around the levels I managed to complete four of the special quest bonuses. You can tell when you have completed a bonus because the computer chimes once and it says so in a little message box. One of the special quest bonuses was on level two. You need to put a knife into each mark on the walls for rations.

For level three after placing the red gems in the spare eye sockets at the end of the level remove the four gems for extra rations. On Level four I did the special quest, but I'm not sure how I did it, but it involves pulling a chain to the North East of where you find Taghor. For completing this bonus I got few extra experience points.

Finally for the Level six quest, go around the level and collect the Kenku eggs then go to a small room with the words 'Nest' outside it. Kill the Kenku inside then go inside and close the door. Drop all the Kenku eggs in the room and a secret door opens. Inside that room is one of the best weapons in the game, it's called the 'Chieftain Halberd'.

Collect the eggs again because you will need them to bribe the Drow on Level seven. Has anyone else completed any of the different quest bonuses?

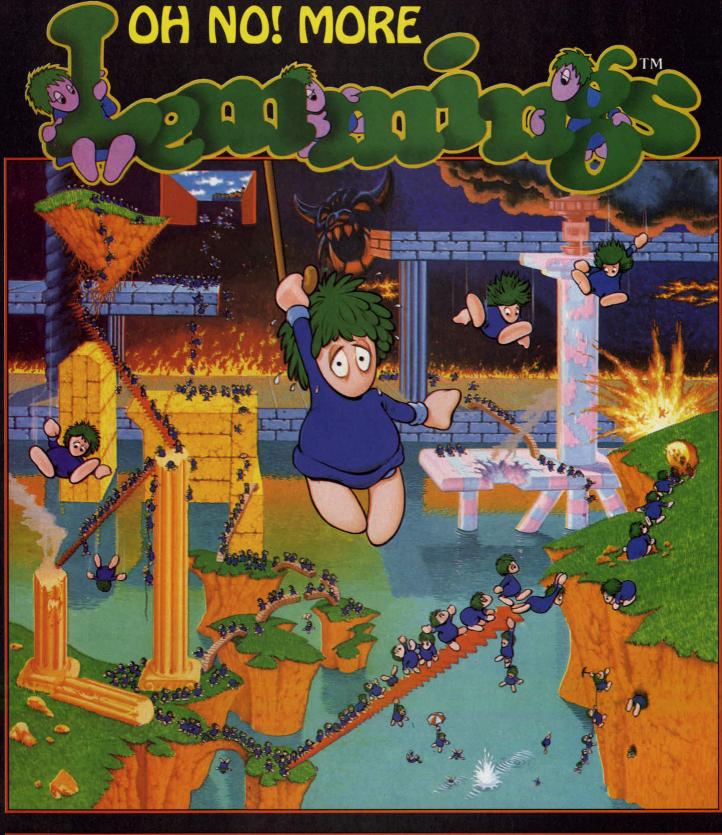

Tim Hughes, Bromley

There seems to be a lot of clever little humans who have completed this game. Normally I wouldn't mind, (I like to see you getting on)

One reader has reached the final confrontation with the 'End of Dungeon' monster in the Eye of the Beholder and sent us back this snapshot to prove it. If you're looking for help with the special quests his advice might save your life.

More Problems with the Diabolical Dungeon Master

I'm writing to you Boggit because I'm in the muck again,

But I know I'll get the help I need if I write to your Domain.

Your ready wit and helpfulness, you write with flair and style,

For me your column in this mag stands out by a mile.

We don't take you for granted, we really know your worth.

Your answers though sometimes cheeky are really full of mirth.

So keep it up Master Boggit don't let your patience wane,

Because the way I'm playing Dungeon Master, I'll soon be in the muck again!

I've been stuck in Dungeon Master for two months now. Run around as I may I have no idea where I am, who I am, or what I am looking for. I think I'm on Level 8 but I'm not sure about anything anymore.

I've been in the room with all the coin slots and opened all the partitions. I then went downstairs and did battle with a big spider, knights and the floating whatever-they-are'! I have done this repeatedly but don't know what to do next. I read your column every month but I cannot see any reference to the level I am in.

not on Level 8, but Level 11, (you great pudding!). If you managed to get down the stairs to Level 12 where the spiders and Death Knights are, why are you going back up again?

At the end of the first corridor on Level 12 is a large room. Two paces right into the room is a series of pits which are opened and closed by the pressure pad you just stepped on. Take the right-hand exit from the pit room and pass through the gate (you need a key).

Keep to the left and enter a small room where you'll find a large switch in an alcove on the left. Return to the pit room and take the other exit. There are lots and lots of small secret buttons on this level so you'll need to search carefully.

You mention finding another stairway on Level 11, but you don't explain whether it was by using a skeleton key on the skull on the wall.

If this is what you are referring to then I'm surprised that you haven't done that on the earlier levels because there are skull exits from Level 8 downwards.

As for the floating 'whatever-they-are', they are Materializers and it takes a Vorpal Blade or the DES EW spell to damage them.

Well there are a million jobs still to be done around the forest glade, Archimedes needs a bath and there are lots of keyholes in Software Houses which I need to peep through before next month so I'm off.

DRINK OR DIE

The first interlink scene is set in a seedy bar where only the lowest dare to tread. Although at first it seems deserted, gunmen are hidden behind the bar ready to pounce. As soon as they appear the player must aim his cross hair and attempt to blow the enemy away. From here it's onto the barbers shop where the same fate awaits. This time the hoods swing around in the stools when the lights are turned on. The player must shoot quickly and accurately

THAT'S THE GAMBLE

Ten years have passed since the episode in downtown New York. The player has acquired himself a little more respect over the years but is nowhere near earning the title of Don. No sooner has the player arrived when a bomb explodes taking one of the family's casinos with it. Hastily retreating from the site, the player must blast his way to the Coliseum casino.

But the hoods have also with the majority of the scenes consisting of horizontally scrolling locations including Havana, Miami Marina and the finale, the heart of a small town in America in the 1980s where the player must battle his way through various ambushes before arriving at one of the family's gates and confronting all the heads of that clan.

If he has done well against the enemy then he will be made a Don, but if he has performed badly then he will be shunned away never to return. The finale is one of the most ambitious programming feats ever seen. It is set in the conservatory of the great house. The meeting of the Dons is disrupted by the arrival of a suspicious helicopter outside. In this final confrontation, the player must defend the assembled Dons by destroying the helicopter and its crew of assassins. Success will cement a new peace between the rival families. Failure means that bloody war will continue...

Unfortunately, your accuracy is a little rusty and one of the Dons takes a bullet straight through the eye but you still have a slim chance to save the other members and earn the respect of a Don.

THE GODFATHER U.S. GOLD £29.99 TEAM: CREATIVE MATERIALS

RIALS 2017

Godfather from US Gold must contain some of the most beautifully drawn graphics ever seen on the Amiga. The different locations are superb and the atmosphere has been harnessed perfectly. Likewise, gameplay is extremely addictive. It is obvious that a great deal of time and loving care has gone into Godfather and the result is a masterpiece. It is guaranteed to steal most, if not all, the awards for technical brilliance and whatever else you care to mention. Absolutely excellent!

The graphics for Godfather have been created by the masterful hands of Pete Lyon. The three rows of walking characters are the original sprites that were to be used for the main character. The middle set was eventually chosen but the others do make an appearance as bad guys.

Pace Crusale

Graphically, Space Crusade looks superb. Everything has been taken straight from the board game and recreated in pixel perfection. The characters are identical to those found inside the board game, except they're already painted.

But things are never that easy and the enemy will do all they can to kill you and your squad so you're gonna need some forward thinking.

SELECTING YOUR SOUAD

As a marine player, you must choose your weapons carefully before entering the alien spaceship. Your squad is made up of yourself, the Space Marine Commander, and four Space Marine troops. The aliens are controlled by the computer and will attempt to destroy the marines.

As in the board game, the Dreadnought droid also appears in the computer conversion and is one hell of a hard mutha to destroy so things aren't going to be easy.

Although the board game contained weapons cards, the computer game holds all this information within a personal computer that is attached to one of the Marines.

This data can be called up at anytime and interrogated to see Characters move around the board using counter positions which correspond to the amount thrown on the electronic dice. The computer then moves all of the Space Marines and aliens which weapons are most effective.

The game is viewed in isometric 3D, which is the same style that is used in Hero Quest, although it has been enhanced here. As with hero Quest, data disks, much like the game expansion sets, are planned for the near future.

Look out for a mega review hopefully in the next issue.

ACTION INFO

SPACE CRUSADE GREMLIN £25.99

Although Hero Quest was a massive hit for Gremlin, Space Crusade looks set for much greater things. The gameplay is superb and extremely easy to get along with and understand. The sprites look identical to their plastic partners, all prepainted to. The look of the game is much more advanced with character references displayed to the right side of the screen while playing. The view can be either isometric 3D or overhead, whichever you prefer. We've said it before and we're gonna have to say it yet again — Space Crusade looks set to be yet another enormous hit for Gremlin. Please guys, give us a break!

When Gremlin signed up the licence for Hero Quest from MB Games they were a little concerned as to how the board game would actually convert to the Amiga. Several ideas were read and rejected before a final draft was approved. However, the gamble did actually pay off and Hero Quest, the computer game, was an instant success.

Now Gremlin are planning to follow up their initial success with another board game conversion entitled Space Crusade, the follow up to Hero Quest, this time set in an Alien-style environment.

The actual plot is set on board a giant spaceship that has been overrun by alien lifeforms with awesome weapons(!). The ships that they inhabit has been drifting in space for a thousand years and has now been infested by Chaos, an evil sect of aliens that are committed to destruction. Unfortunately, the ship has drifted into Earth's solar system and is heading toward the planet with its destructive cargo.

DUT OF CHAOS COMES ORDER

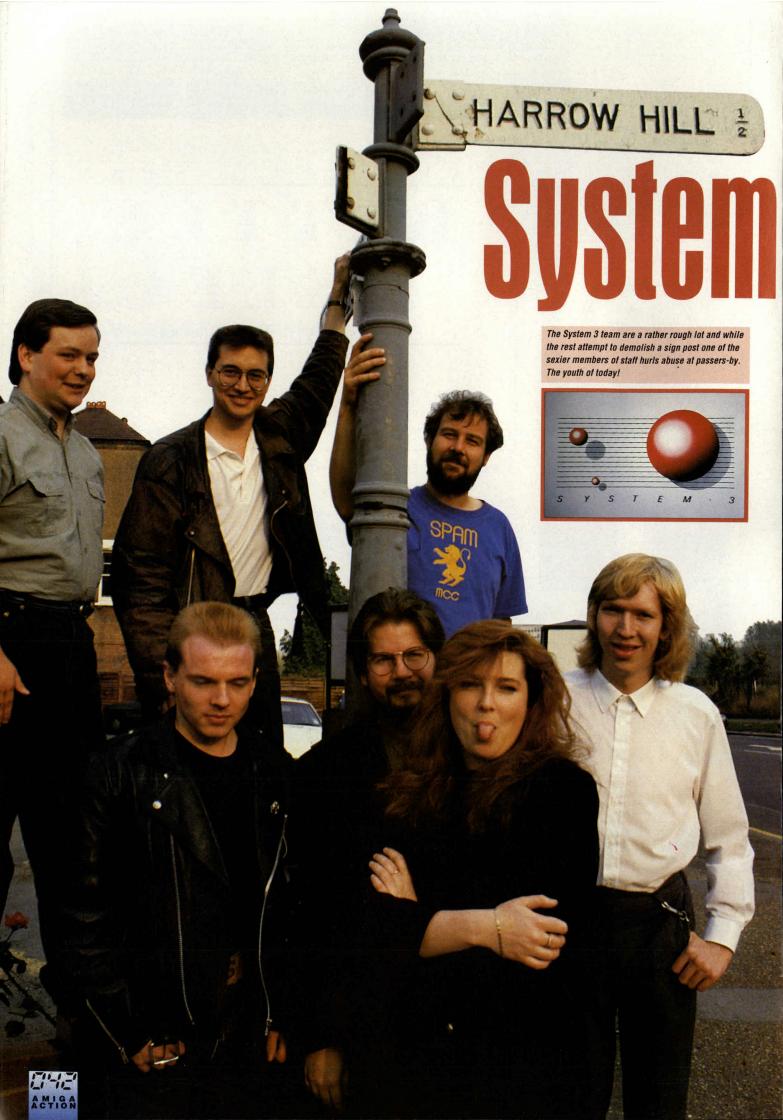

All the characters that appear in the board game are present in the computer conversion. Each one has been painstakingly recreated from the plastic miniatures using an advanced art package.

Atter being dragged screaming from the safety of his own desk, Jason was shoved on a train and sent down to the chaotic wastes of Harrow-on-the-Hill to meet the lovely people at System 3. There he found out about all sorts of interesting things (release windows, marketing imagery, chicken sandwiches, development storyboards and so on) as well as having a close look at the speed blur on Adrian Cale's weapon.

3 Development Special Signature of the second secon ormally when we go and have sneaky peek at any games that are in development we get hold of a few screenshots and run a Project Inspection article. If a particular company has several products lined up we may even go as far as a special feature on that software house. This time we software house. This time we have decided to do something a little different.

Not only will System 3 be showing us the games that they have in the pipeline (Myth, Silly Putty and Turbo Charge) but they will also be telling us their most classified secrets (well, almost).

How does a top software house go about taking a scribbled note on a piece of toilet paper and turning it in to a classic game? Now is your chance to find out.

IN THE BEGINNING

The evolution of a game starts at a very basic level. Normally a development team or one of System 3's own designers will come up with an idea and will show a brief outline of the concept to one of the company's big cheese big cheese by the people, in this case Adrian Cale. If the idea is promising, a meeting between the developers, the development manager and Adrian will be arranged for a few weeks later.

At this stage the aim is to explore the potential of the title and decide whether it is worth investing money in the product.

A story board will be made up that details the concepts behind the game and shows the thinking of the development team.

Originally, Myth was intended to be a lot more basic than it has turned out, following the lines of an arcade game as opposed to those of an action adventure.

If the product is worthy of further work it will then be taken over by the development manager who will draw up a list of improvements and alterations that can be made to the product while the programmers start work on the basic routines. Usually, work on the more popular computer formats is started first, either the Amiga or Commodore 64.

THE RIGHT STYLE

System 3 are very fussy people. All of their products must fit in with their image.

Once you have gotten hold of the Medusa's head you can use it to turn the following guardian, a Dragon, into stone.

(Inset) It must be November the 5th! When they said pop along to the barbecue I thought they meant burgers and hot dogs, not slices of a pretty maiden. The bouncer looks damn mean as well.

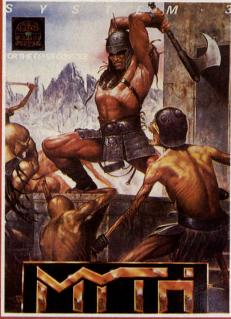

Look at the size of the nose on this geezer! He must be related to Steve, the local god and supreme editor. Materialising in his hand is a lesser demon that you will have to destroy If you are to get at the big guy himself.

Silly Putty is a rather strange game. Here you blow yourself up to an incredibly large size before exploding all over the screen. Sounds painful.

In most cases original artwork is commissioned for each release. However, this illustration by Les Edwards was used for the Amiga version of Myth, it caught someone's eye and fitted the style of the game well.

As you run around the world of Myth you will encounter all sorts of famous people. Here, Thor struts his stuff and twirls his hammer around in the air. I bet he has been practising with the majorettes!

As any self-respecting piece of putty will tell you you have to master the art of dangling. You can tell an experienced blob when they can dangle like a pro!

G a m e p l a y , graphics, sound and so on are all decided at this early stage and are kept to fairly rigidly. They must be of a high standard as one duff product can ruin a company's reputation. All through the development a close eye is kept on the game to ensure that quality doesn't slip.

Artwork for adverts, box covers and so on is also considered at this stage. Again it must fit in with the right image and convey they correct message. Usually original artwork is commissioned (as for case for Ninja 3) but if a suitable piece of work already exists, then the rights to use that particular image may be purchased. This happened with the Amiga version of Myth. Although original artwork was used for the C64 format, a painting by Les Edwards fitted in with the image so well that an alteration to the packaging was made.

HOT OFF THE PRESS

Making the public aware of a particular product is extremely important if the game is going to be successful. The major link between System 3 and prospective customers are the games magazines such as the wonderful Amiga Action.

As soon as possible screenshots and press releases will be sent out so that the game can be mentioned in the news sections of various publications.

Following on will be previews and articles such as the one you are reading at the moment. The idea is to grab the attention of potential buyers and get them interested in the game. If everything goes well the first thing you will do when of the next issue of the magazine is turn to the review of the System 3 game thatwas previewed in the previous month's issue. Timing is essential at this stage. In an ideal world the first full reviews of any game should appear about two weeks ahead of the release date.

SYSTEM

Some games take only a few months to develop, Fuzzball was finished within three months, and other more complex games, such as Myth, can take well over a year before they end up in the shops. A mistake at the testing stage could mean a lot of work going down the drain as the product goes unnoticed among the other new releases.

ON THE STREETS

The actual period of release for a game is also critical. Film licenses sell very well around the christmas period, often overshadowing more original releases. Parents and other relations are buying games as presents for their offspring and they will tend to go for the big names that they recognise rather than lesser known products.

The best time for new products is around the New Year, Easter and the autumn period. Getting the release window correct can s o m e t i m e s make or break a game and often a product can be held back until a suitable time comes along.

THE AFTER LIFE

Although the first month after release is the most important as far as sales are concerned, keeping the public aware of a product is also vital. This is done using in-store promotions and through the games magazines.

Typical methods include competitions, posters, hints, tips and solutions. After that there are other formats to be considered (Nintendo will be releasing Myth under a Conan the Barbarian title), such as compilations and budget games.

So there you have it, the evolution a game. It isn't a random affair, every stage of the process from the conception to the final stages of the release are planned in detail.

We would like to thank the staff of System 3 and in particular Adrian Cale for all their help and also the tasty plate of chicken salad sandwiches.

(Above) Producing games is very hard work. You have to get up at the crack of dawn and don't stop until you collapse from exhaustion.

Under no circumstances would you get the time to spend all afternoon playing with a specially built Scalextric circuit. They actually claim that is used for research!

SPECTHUM, AMSTHAD, C DIZZY TREASURE ISLAND DIZZY FANTASY WORLD DIZZY LITTLE PUFF ROCKSTAR MAGICLAND DIZZY SLIGHTLY MAGIC SEYMOUR IN HOLLYWOOD SPIKE IN TRANSYLVANIA

Superhero Leander, a man known for his bravery and disregard for death. is about to embark upon a quest to save his loved one from the clutches of the evil magician. How romantic that one is willing to risk one's life for the sake of another! It's probably to do with unfulfilled sexual desires but we can't go into that as, by all accounts, we're a family magazine!

WHITER THAN WHITE

Lucanna, friend to Leander, is a fair princess whose purity and goodness is vital to Lord Thanatos, the evil guy with lightning bolts sizzling about his fingertips. Thanatos needs to sacrifice Lucanna to restore his dwindling powers as she is the only suitable person.

Of course, it would have been easier to execute Lucanna while she was roaming free and thus prevent Thanatos from ever achieving his aim but no, you have to go about the whole situation the hard way, by letting her get captured. Now you have to rescue Lucanna and kill Thanatos in the process. You worked this one out really well, didn't you?

LEANDER THE LIONHEART

Unfortunately for Thanatos doesn't plan on returning Lucanna without a fight. Consequently, he has instructed his loyal minions to halt you in your tracks.

You are strongly outnumbered with all the odds stacked against you but you have the courage of a lion so try to forget about the hundreds of bloodthirsty nasties just waiting to pounce.

OK, let's be honest, you've got a problem on your hands but there's no task too difficult for a man of your swordsmanship! In this great, eight-way scrolling hack 'n' slash platform shoot'em-up (figure that one out!), you must negotiate 22 taxing levels.

To progress from level to level, you require a special item from the level you are presently exploring. Fair enough, you may think. However, each item is ruthlessly guarded by a vile

He must be in the Robin Hood lookalike contest! You jump towards him, ready to pounce

If you manage to destroy the skeletal dragon, it may leave a useful item behind such as an extra life, the object you need for the next level or absolutely nothing at all!

You cast a Demon spell. Not only is it visually stunning, but it kills absolutely everything on screen

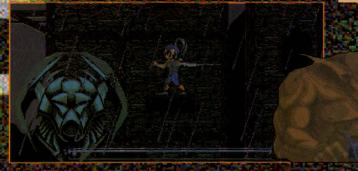

Where's my brolly? The thunder and lightning signifies the appearance of a deadly flying Demon. It's difficult to tackle when you're movement is restricted to the platforms.

Gotcha, ya ugly muther! By keeping your finger on the fire button, you execute the suicide method of attack. You lose a life but the monster suffers considerably.

Leander

demon of some horrible nature. Always one for a good battle, the guardians will gladly satisfy your fighting inclinations. Once the necessary item is in your hands, you must find the teleporter to the next stage.

GIZ SOME DOSH!

Bonus weapons and other such helpful objects can be collected. Each time you destroy a foe, > certain valuables remain behind. These can be used to trade with shopkeepers for enhanced weaponry, more resistant armour, or even healing potions. Obviously, healing potions are very important as you must try and maintain your energy level for as long as possible, particularly when you consider how many levels you're expected to complete. Your energy strength is displayed by the colour of your armour.

The game features three worlds boasting some colourfully detailed parallax scrolling scenery containing over 100 different types of enemies. And wow! Yep, even the weather has a role as you can be subjected to torrential rain should the Gods take it upon themselves to make your life more of a misery!

Psygnosis have persisted with the formula that seems so popular among many gamesplayers: a magnificent intro sequence has been carefully programmed to entice you into wanting to play the game as well as absorbing you into the magic and mystical atmosphere.

It is, of course, created around the same level of quality that we have all come to admire and respect. There are over 60 effects (including horses hooves that have been sampled from banging two coconut halves together, or so they say!) and 11 in-game melodies: more than enough to entertain you.

LEANDER PSYGNOSIS £25.99 TEAM: A. INGRAM & J. BURTON

With incredibly smooth animation and innovative character designs, Leander has to be played to be fully appreciated. Using hardware sprites, the programmers amooth throughout. Although sound effects are punchy, they're not as frequent as I would have liked. The music is consistently lively and appropriate to the mood of the game. Programmed to perfection! A simply outstanding Psygnosis product.

ATFO

Ice hockey is a game that I never plan to watch. Yet when I'm waiting for the football results on a Saturday afternoon I regularly find myself glued to Grandstand's Ice Hockey Coverage.

Why? I ask myself. Maybe it's the fast action, maybe it's the violence, who knows?

So, not one to walk away from an Ice Hockey simulation, I gratefully accepted the offer to review Krisalis' latest offering, Face Off, following hot on the heels of the incredibly successful Manchester United Europe.

When you select the management section you will be presented with a world map from which you must select the country you wish to represent in the game.

Ice Hockey

HOT COMPETITION

I can only remember two other Ice Hockey simulations: the appalling International Ice Hockey from Impulze and the not so appalling Wayne Gretzky's from Electronic Arts. So how does Face Off compare to the others? Well actually, not too badly.

As we have come to expect from Krisalis, the game is a combination of arcade action and managerial strategy. Therefore, if you're not interested in player statistics or selecting your team, it is possible to enter a one or two player arcade game with the minimum amount of fuss involved.

If you feel like dabbling into the world of Ice Hockey management you won't be disappointed. A wealth of well presented screens containing options, bar charts, and statistics are supplied.

PUCK OFF

With the backbone of the team created back in the dressing room, it's down to the ice rink we go. You control either the player in possession or the player nearest the puck. To win possession you can either pick up a loose puck or whack your opponent with your stick in an attempt to knock him over. The latter option often upsets opposing team members who immediately start a pitch fight.

Once in possession of the puck, it's possible to either pass the ball (hold down on the fire button) or shoot in the general direction of the goal (a quick jab of the fire button). Personally, I found the best way to score was to strike the puck at goal and stab it home while the goalie remained stranded.

FACE OFF ICE HOCKEY KRISALIS £25.99 TEAM: N LITTLE & P HACKNEY

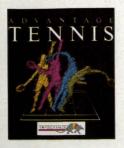

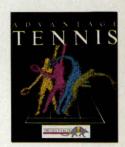

I was under the impression that Ice Hockey was a physical contact sport played at break-neck speed. Krisalis tend not to agree – the physical side of things is OK but the speed and the frantic action is sadly lacking. This is highlighted further when you discover the players' sheer lack of ability to score a goal or accurately pass the puck. It's a bit of a shame really because this carries all the usual Krisalis trade marks: excellent presentation, loads of options and an abundance of nice touches.

You can fly to any location you like using your hovership. A digital 3D topographical map of the planet surface is displayed beneath your hovership.

So, you get home, insert the disk and turn on your Amiga.

Hold on a minute, what's this? I'm being told to insert a blank disk, and another blank disc and wait around for about 10 minutes or so, while the computer unpacks files and saves them onto my blank disks. Aaaarrrrgggh!

Admittedly, it's not too much of a pain and you only have to do it once, but really it shouldn't be the buyer's responsibility. Maybe it's just me being a little harsh, but in these days of five disk products it's not acceptable. Anyway, on with the review.

SHIPWRECKED

You play the part of either Nova or Stark, depending on your sexual preference. Your previous ship was completely destroyed in a freak accident involving an asteroid. Only you and your navigator survived the incident. Following your accident a new ship was provided by the Starkiller Mercenary Group. It's up to you though to find a new crew and build up their skills and experience over a period of time.

Crew recruitment is your initial task.
Seemingly useless people may in fact have hidden skills and experience. You must wander around the spaceport and interact with the various beings until your crew is complete.

TRADING PLACES

With a full crew of considerable experience the fun really begins. The core of the game is trading. To

An abundance of icons and keyboard shortcuts makes learning how to conduct yourself fairly straightforward. The careful blend of space trading, strategy

Viva La Mafia

You've seen the film, read the book, looked at the review and now you want to play the game. The praise that has been heaped upon this superb US Gold release is enough to drive any man to extreme lengths just to catch a glimpse of it, let alone owning a copy!

PRIZES GALORE

Well now is your chance to get loads of Godfather goodies for absolutely zilch and, if you are really lucky, a holiday. Yep, it's true, the first prize is a weekend holiday for two in SICILY! (It's bellisima, I've been G.W.) Even if you aren't fortunate enough to be the one who goes off to a sunnier climate you could still be receiving a pile of prizes. Five runners up will be getting an exclusive video set, a CD of the Godfather soundtrack and your very own copy of the game. You lucky people!

HAVE YOU SEEN THE FILMS?

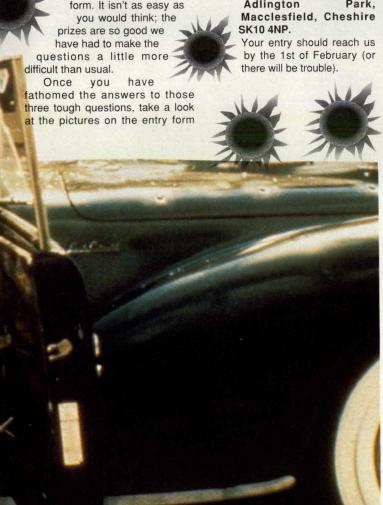

The questions for this amazing competition are all based on the Godfather films, so if you haven't seen them yet run down to your local video shop and rent them. The story is about a young Italian lad who grows up in America and shoots a lot of people. He then starts up his own business and shoots some more people. Following that he manages to become the head of the Mafia and shoot even more people. At around this stage he starts to feel that what he has done in the past isn't really nice and the series finishes with him trying to get away from all the murdering and killing. Some people, eh? (And all this in just a days viewing, really Jason! G.W.)

To stand a chance of winning a prize you have to answer the three questions that follow below and circle the ten differences between the two similar screenshots that are shown on the entry form. It isn't as easy as you would think; the prizes are so good we have had to make the

The Godfather films feature rather a lot of shooting. In this scene one of the characters gets riddled with over a hundred bullets just for parking on a double yellow line.

In the film Don Corleone attempts to sell a second hand car to someone but the bullet holes make him rather suspicious. Apparently he covers up by saying it's a new style of air conditioning.

Those of you who read last month's review of Rodland may recall how sickeningly cute it was. However, that doesn't mean to say that the various nasties and guardians don't throw a killer punch or two. In true Amiga Action style, we've waded our way through the entire game and successfully released the fairles' captured mother. Being the kind souls that we are, we've decided to share our skills with you. We'll cover all 40 levels in two monthly instalments, so make sure you tune in next month!

GENERAL HINTS

The first 20 levels of Rodland are fairly easy and therefore, you should use these levels to gain as many lives as possible. Surprisingly enough, it's actually very easy to gain extra lives, providing you stick to the following guidelines.

On just about every level, all the nasties begin at the top of the screen and casually work their way down before attempting to return to the top. While they drop to the bottom, move to the top and collect any flowers. Following this, it's very easy to drop down and collect the remaining flowers.

Unfortunately, the above point isn't failsafe and most of the time you'll encounter the nasties head-on. There are two effective ways of avoiding the enemy without actually destroying it. Remember, at this stage you don't want to destroy the enemy until you've collected all the flowers and turned the nasties into bonus letter dropping Kaburras.

The first method of avoiding them, and arguably the most effective is to simply throw them over your head using your rod. This not only gets rid of the immediate danger, but also knocks any other incoming nasties away. The only disadvantage of this method is the risk of actually killing the nasty.

The other way to avoid the nasties is to build an upwards ladder and perch yourself on the top of it until it passes beneath. If the nasty decides to climb the ladder, simply drop off to the left or right depending on which side is safer. Alternatively, if you're standing upon a platform, you could build a downward ladder and escape via this exit. Personally though, I'd use an upward ladder.

collected all the flowers and the screen is now iam-packed with roaming Kaburras. All you need to do is destroy them all and collect the bonus letters. If the correct letter doesn't appear, wait for the letters to rotate. The last bonus letter always rotates twice before disappearing. Using these simple techniques it's possible to gain an extra life every two or three levels!

Guardian One, crocodiles, is very straight forward. Remain on the bottom platform and wait for the crocs to drop. Stand back a few pixels (check out the link for the best position) and blast away. If the croc behind you gives birth to any baby crocs, turn around and fire, giving yourself plenty of time. Simply alternate between the left and right crocs until each and every one is destroyed and remember, stay on the bottom platform to avoid the jumping baby crocs!

The whale guardian may look rather big and fearsome but it's the baby whales that inflict the damage. When the whale appears, blast it in the eye as many times as possible (sometimes, you may need to build a ladder to reach the whale's eye, illustrated in the link), keeping an eye on the baby whales. When they begin their descent, move to one side of the screen and blast them. Alternatively, you could just build a ladder, climb to the top of it and avoid them that way.

IOW YOUR ENEMY PART

SPUDS: On the earlier levels these guys don't reproduce too often. The same cannot be said about the later levels. Don't let them congregate and mate at the bottom, otherwise there's no way in which to drop down safely and zap 'em.

SHARKS: If a shark stops in its tracks, you can be quite sure that it's about to start crying. To avoid the tear simply build a skyward ladder and climb to the top. There is absolutely no excuse for not converting every shark you encounter into a bonus letter!

CORN COBS: These guys are pretty pacey to say the least. Although they pose no threat whatsoever, so collect the flowers, fling a few Kaburras and gain yourself an extra life or two.

NESSIES: To be quite honest, I don't really know what to say about these particular monsters. They're slow, don't possess any firepower and rarely cause any trouble.

BUNNIES: The fluffy bunnies have a nasty habit of hiding behind one another. Remember this whenever you attempt to throw them over your head with the rod. Standing on top of a ladder is possibly the most effective method of evasion.

POLYMORPHS: When they get close, they stick out their tongue with murderous intent. Avoiding the tongue is easy: wait for the polymorph to stop, build a ladder, climb to the top of it and admire the tongue from above!

WASPS: As in real life, wasps have a tendency to float around your head making horrible buzzing type noises. We suggest you blast half the swarm to smithereens and convert the remainder into Kaburras.

SQUARE BLOBS: Fairly harmless, until of course, they fire three blobs of rising water. Ensure that you're not standing directly above the blobs when they stop and don't be fooled by the sudden acceleration of the water.

BUSHIES: The manual states that they're just furry fakes, which is absolutely true. Usually, they appear with other nasties to ensure that the level remains the slightest bit challenging.

AT YOUR WAY TO THE TOP

For those of you who cannot reach the top of the hi-score table, here's a sort of cheat that might make your life a little easier. On the first endof-level guardian, the crocodiles, destroy all but one of the crocs.

Stand in the middle of the screen facing the remaining croc and either turn on auto-fire, sellotape the fire button down or sit there for an hour or so endlessly pressing fire. The baby crocs keep on coming and run straight into your protruding rod (ooerl). Your score will continue to increase for as long as you want.

Secondly, if you're finding some of the later levels a little tough and have so far failed to destroy the nasties without losing the odd life or two, simply wait for the nasties to turn into clouds (blue meanies) and then wait around yet again until they disappear, leaving you to advance onto the following level and complete utter safety!

Maps showing direct routes from the motorway and A5

The guys who pull the gals are back on our pages this month as we examine their holy escapades to the very last detail. Yes, we follow them through two whole levels so all you have to do is buy the game and boogle along with us.

Take the box at the top of the stairs that leads from the lower floor to the second floor. Use this to rid the raging trolley from your path. Keep running. Jump up onto the ledge at the top of the three steps. If you didn't stop, the thug will have missed you.

Collect the records, then run off to the left. BEWARE OF THE TRIGGER-HAPPY COPPER! Avoid the officer and duck into the music store. Lo and behold, you should find your precious guitar lying there. Take it, leave, and run to the left then up the stairs.

there are probably some of you who are still experiencing a few minor problems. Just look at the map and follow the light, hallelujah brother! Well actually, you follow the arrows but we were just getting into the mood of things. Don't forget to read the helpful notes!

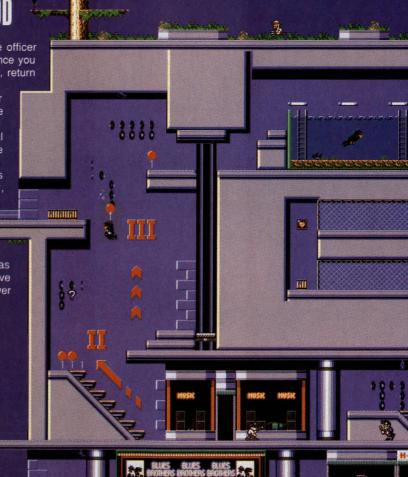

and thrown. Take one, launch it at the police officer before he can turn around and shoot back. Once you have disposed of the aggressive law enforcer, return to pick up another box.

Run along, keeping a watchful eye out for the rampant trolley that rolls about outside the hi-fi shop. Blast it with your box!

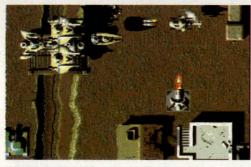

Return again to collect the third and final box from the bunch. Use this to destroy the other trolley outside the next shop along from the hi-fi store. You can enter this shop to gather some records. Remember, collect enough records and you gain an extra energy heart.

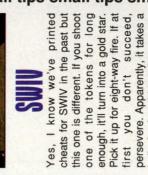

Easy so far. Outside one of the shops should be another box. You can now take this box and throw it at the policeman to the far right, near the stairs. If everything has gone to plan, all and sundry will now have been destroyed on the map's lower floor. Ingenious!

the floor/ceiling. Collect as many records as you can, move right.

When your balloon bursts, you want to aim for the high platform to the right, near the lift shaft. Wait for the lift to arrive which will allow you to walk to the other side. Don't worry about the water, you swim like a fish. The tiddler in the water is harmless. Avoid the question mark as it deducts points. You don't need to take the box that's sitting on the other side of the second tank.

Dash to the left until you reach the tree, being careful to jump over the two pitchfork-wielding farmers. Bound to the top of the tree. Use a box to kill the egg dropping bird - jump and then throw.

Take any of the umbrellas from the tree. You can leap from left to right upon the large clouds. Once you reach the cloud with two boxes, there are three options: Firstly, take a box and kill the bird that's flying about the area. Secondly, keep jumping to the left in the hope that the bird misses you with its eggs. Thirdly, wait on the cloud next to the boxes and try to prod the bird with your brolly this will kill the bird instantly. Now travel as far right as possible. Collect as many records as you can until you eventually hit the floor. Walk to the flag and, hey, you'll see the light that'll take you to the second level!

Let the conveyor belts carry you along for a while. On the third belt, run to the left and through the wire mesh tunnel. At the end of the tunnel is an energy heart. Jump over to collect it, trying to fall through the records as you descend.

Now run to the right and drop onto the lower walkway. Take a box and launch it the bad guy who mindlessly runs from left to right. Grab hold of the other box and run to the right. We'll just pause a moment while you take all that in! Continue right. As soon as you see the woman on her own, quickly throw the box to kill her.

Duck down once the box is thrown just in case she managed to throw something back at you before being bumped off the screen.

Ascend on the elevator. Take a box and continue to ascend. Dispose of the policeman. Descend to take the last remaining box, go back up until you reach the exit that leads out into the open air. Quickly fell the officer with your box and proceed left. Now for the last

An excellent game and placed very highly in our league system, Activision's Hunter had us hooked from the start. After much indepth discussion that took us into the early hours, we decided the best form of help we could give you is a quick run through of the Hunter mission plus the all-Important co-ordinates of vehicles and their details. So if you should find yourself stranded on an Island somewhere in the middle of nowhere, just read on for assistance.

HUNT OR BE Hunted

Your first task in your mission to find the General is to talk to the "first man". Initial transportation can be found on the shoreline near Headquarters a rocket boat fully laden with fuel or there is a helicopter at X-181 Y-107.

The "first man" will tell you to go to the old man at X-181 Y-197. You will need to give him four bags of money for the following information: the master key is at X-164 Y-169. Then find the "second man" at X-099 Y-061.

GENERAL TIP: You'll find it useful to wear an enemy uniform during your travels.

You'll be told to visit the professor at X-049 Y-115 who wants the nuclear device at X-028 Y-227.

From here, the floppy disk is located at X-100 Y-225 and the "third man" at X-195 Y-119.

What else is there? Well, you'll need the security pass at X-090 Y-153 to be able to use the computer at X-244 Y-199 but remember to wear an enemy uniform.

Next, rescue the prisoner from X-135 Y-239 but take the hacksaw to him from X-151 Y-121, while food must be taken to the monk at X-085 Y-174. Food comes in the form of rabbits and birds that must be captured by walking into them.

Finally, talk to the injured soldier found at X-010 Y-036. This will lead you to the General's bunker at X-135 Y-239.

GOVERNMENT, TRADE AND EDUCATIONAL ORDERS WELCOME

Whenever the two side meet each other a fight will start. As the units pulverise each other with missiles and rockets a graphic representation will appear allowing you to watch your tanks blow up in glorious technicolour.

The battle is hotting up and both sides are in the thick of things. The depot that is in the middle of the skirmish contains rather a lot of vehicles and could seriously affect the outcome of the battle.

A virus is very nasty thing and once it gets into your computers it can bugger up the system completely.

When one was planted in the Defence Network Computer of the Drule Empire it did more than delete a few files.

Suddenly hundreds of remote control war machines and destruction drones turned on their Drule masters.

The Computer had achieved artificial intelligence (with a little help from the virus) and was now fighting for the land it was designed to protect.

The Drules had no choice whatsoever but to fight back with all of their remaining forces.

IT'S TIME FOR WAR

You must take the role of the Drule commander and battle it out against either your Amiga or a friend who is playing the Defence Network Computer.

There are a total of 32 battle fields for you to fight it out on and each will require a different strategy and plan of action. While one tactic may work on a small island it may be completely useless for the larger ones. Each of the islands is covered with features to make the fights more of a challenge.

Hills, mountains, roads, rivers, lakes, swamps and most importantly, factories. Different terrain types will affect the fighting abilities of your forces and you must plan your attacks around the intervening land.

As your troops march across the islands and blow things up with their extremely large guns your supplies will start to run low and casualties mount up.

Fortunately, you will discover warehouses and factories that contain the very items that you require. The first side to capture the buildings with an infantry unit will gain all of the equipment contained within.

After the dust has settled and the hideous groans of the wounded have finally ceased you will be given a debriefing. performance of both warring factions will be analysed and awarded a particular rating.

The code to progress onto the next battle will be shown and it's off to kick their butts.

world of

AMOS – The Creator is like nothing you've ever seen before on the Amiga. For the very first time you'll feel really in control of your computer, and able to harness its awesome power to impress yourself and your friends.

AMOS is not a false promise. When AMOS first came out, many Amiga users were sceptical that AMOS could do all that was promised – but these people are now ardent fans. There are now 45,000 AMOS users, and AMOS is still the biggest-selling productivity package for the Amiga, and can be found on the shelves of virtually every good software retailer.

It's so easy to create AMOS programs that almost every public domain library in this magazine now has AMOS titles in its collection. These include graphics demos, music demos, disc magazines, arcade-style games, puzzle games, databases, educational software – and lots more.

Many commercial software packages are also written in AMOS. In fact most educational publishers use AMOS, especially ourselves with the best-selling Fun School 3 and 4.

AMOS was the perfect choice to create Fun School 4 – the results are first class!

AMOS has also proved to be perfect for producing CDTV packages: The Complete Works of William Shakespeare, The Holy Bible, Mind Run I and II plus many others – all created using AMOS because of its versatility and ease of use.

What is AMOS?

Earlier on this year, Domark released a new flight simulation that captured the feel of the latest soviet fighter, the MiG-29 Fulcrum. Since its release, sales have topped over £1,250,000 and have been phenomenally successful. When news reached the western world that the MiG-29 was to be upgraded, it came as no surprise that Domark would upgrade their simulation as well.

The more advanced MiG-29M Super Fulcrum features even more thrust than the original, extra fuel capacity, the latest standard of cockpit layout and fly-by-wire controls equal to those used on American fighters. These additions to an already superb fighter have resulted in an aircraft that can match anything that NATO could ever produce.

AT THE READY FIVE

MiG-29M Super Fulcrum (the game) puts you in the pilot's seat of one of these top air superiority fighters as part of a multi-national peace keeping force. You and your comrades have been assigned to fly air strike and defensive missions over a 20,000 square kilometre area. The battlefield is controlled by rebels and terrorists and you must enforce the United Nations resolution (828) and force them to surrender the region to back to the legitimate government.

You have four campaign objectives which have to be completed in order to eliminate the rebel threat. Firstly, you must break the rebels' supply lines and isolate them from external aid. Secondly, clear any air bases you discover and capture them

TECHNICAL SPECIFICATIONS

NAME: MiG-29M Super Fulcrum ROLE: Air-Superiority Fighter LENGTH: 17.23m HEIGHT: 4.73m WINGSPAN: 11.36m WEIGHT: Empty, 8175kg; Loaded: 15000kg

POWERPLANT: Two Isotov RD-33 low ratio bypass turbofans

RATING: 5098kg drythrust, 8300kg with afterburning

TACTICAL RADIUS: 710km MAXIMUM SPEED: Mach 2.3 FLIGHT CEILING: 17000m

ARMAMENT: AA-10 Alamo and AA-11 Archer missiles plus a 30mm Cannon

Mic 20 M Super-Fulerum

from enemy hands. Thirdly, destroy the strategic bases that the rebels have gained control of before finally taking over and eliminating the rebel headquarters. The four set objectives can be achieved over a series of missions that will slowly break down the rebels' resolve and military strength. To attempt to complete even one of the objectives in a single flight would be folly and probably result in your death.

While you are flying your missions, other pilots from the peace keeping forces will also be in the air making their own strikes against the enemy. You are just one more cog in a giant war machine.

UP. UP AND AWAY

After equipping your fighter with its rockets, missiles and cannon rounds you should take to the skies. Once airborne, your flight computer will guide you towards your pre-set waypoints (determined during your mission) briefing). Your Heads Up Display (HUD) allows you to fly the aircraft with only the occasional glance at the control panels. Everything from the angle of attack to the velocity vector is projected on to the cockpit bubble and in front of your eyes.

Following the preset waypoints you will come across your targets. As the enemy bases appear on the horizon your weaponry will lock-on to allowing you to blow the wheelers in to little chunks before flying off in to the sunset.

Things only get dodgy when the enemy fighters take to the skies to return the favour. You will have to engage them in a deadly high speed dogfight using your cannons.

COMBAT MANOEUVRES

After your flight you return to your main base for a debriefing. You will be informed of any attacks you successfully performed and mistakes that you made. You will then be able to assess the current situation of the war and how it has developed, before embarking on your next series of attacks.

You are not assigned any set missions, but you are able to decide upon the targets you wish to destroy. From this briefing screen you are able to adjust your waypoints.

Believe it or not, engaging a fighter in head to head combat is rather dangerous! One small miscalculation and your plane a is blazing fireball arcing across the heavens.

The air is full of bandits, and vampires are all over your back. A hard nine G-roll should puil you round on the tail of this first larget, but r emember his wingman will follow right in behind you.

As with most modern simulators, MiG-29M also includes the facility to link two Amigas together and dogfight with a friend. While you are going head-to-head with your opponent there are also other neutral aircraft and vehicles in the battle area making things a little more exciting and a touch more unpredictable.

All the normal campaign settings are ignored for this daring test of skill. Basically it's a case of. last man left in the air collects the prize.

(Above) You have options on colours, extra ground details and a shaded horizon to suit your taste. (Below) You must desiroy the enemy fighters and go on to eliminate all of their ground installations

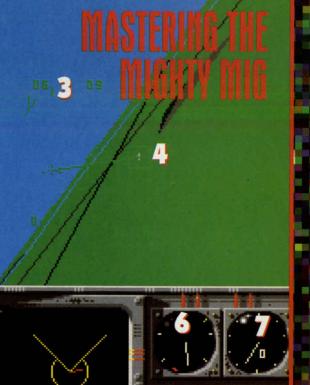

From the roster screen you can choose which of the current pilots you will take into the air on this mission. You can also go head to head with a friend over a serial link-up.

CTION MIG-29M SUPER DOMARK £39.99 TEAM: SIMIS

To be honest, we weren't very impressed with the first MiG-29 that was released in January, it just didn't come up to scratch. With the new version, Domark have rectified the problems with the earlier release and upgraded the program all round. The graphics run smoothly and are fast, yet the ground detail is still impressive. However, the plane handles very poorly, the controls suffer from a time delay that can be very frustrating. While this may be realistic it doesn't play very well. You should definitely try before you buy. JASON JASON

Initially the task of trapping the aliens looks impossible. How are you going to tackle this level?

Firstly, you decide to split the screen in half then begin to occupy a strip of land through the centre of the area.

Eventually you reach the top. You destroy a number of the aliens and claim around 50% of the screen.

With a very miserable plot concerning aliens and the invasion of your beautiful planet, you realise that Volfied is more about the crucial entertainment factor and not about creating an atmosphere or scintillating scenario.

When I decide to start writing about the game, some of you may think, "I've seen this somewhere before," and you probably have in various guises. However, with the expertise and experience of Nineties' programmers, you can expect things to have improved.

GOTCHAI

The basic idea is to guide your tiny spacecraft about the screen, encircling aliens with the barrier that trails behind you. The barrier has an unlimited length, therefore allowing you to travel quite a distance in your quest.

By surrounding aliens with your impenetrable tail, they will explode, leaving behind a ball of flames or, quite possibly, a bonus icon. Bonus icons can equip your craft with lasers, speed-ups, time stops which freeze everything on the screen, momentarily (except for yourself!), and so on.

You can only move left, right, up and down, but not diagonally. Upon enclosing an area, it changes to show part of the next level. Until you complete the current level, that enclosed section is a no-go zone for aliens and you can only travel around the perimeter of it. Once all the aliens have been destroyed and you have encircled at least 80% of the area, you can progress onto the next level.

Each level contains a mother alien who, rather than just zooming about like her little partners, takes a more active role and will try to shoot you with missiles and other various weapons. Your craft possesses a steadily weakening shield which will give some protection, but once it completely ceases to exist, you're in for a rough ride — the importance of maintaining your few lives dramatically increases!

RUN FOR IT!

As you venture into the open in your attempt to take over an area of the screen, the smaller aliens will dash to your trailing barrier. Once they latch onto it, they'll send energy pulses along the barrier. If they touch your craft before you can re-establish contact with the edge of a

You set about further reducing the aliens'movements. You have a smaller area to dash about in so things can get quite dangerous.

Upon claiming at least 80% of the screen the remaining aliens spontaneously combust allowing you to progress to the next, more difficult, level.

You destroy an alien that leaves a laser icon behind. Now you can shoot back – it's war! Blast them before the time limit runs out.

The large mother alien opens fire. Make sure you avoid her bullets or your shield will suffer under the attack.

no-go zone or the outer perimeter, you will lose a life.

In all, there are 16 levels, each housing large numbers of fast moving alien fiends. From the initial menu screen, you can alter the gameplay to some extent. You can select whether to play on the easy, medium, or hard level. Your selection affects the speed of the energy pulses: they can be fast and zippy, or relatively slow, enabling you to actually out run them.

The latter obviously gives you a considerable advantage. Also, the harder level gives the aliens more speed and intelligence.

ARCADE ACCURACY

Needless to say, you have to play the game on the hard level to accept the real challenge!

Volfied is actually a Taito coin-op, so you'll know exactly what the game is all about if you pop down to your local arcade and give it a go (that is if you can find the arcade version as its release was some time ago), as Empire have succeeded in producing what can rightfully be called an accurate conversion.

Programmer, Richard

Horrocks, commented on Oxford based ODE's efforts:

"We've taken a lot of time converting the arcade graphics as we wanted it to be as close to the original as possible."

With work that began way back in darkest February, they've made sure that the necessary effort has been put into the game creation.

"We wanted to capture the arcade properties of Volfied and, hopefully, we have not left anything out at all."

He's right, they haven't.

VOLFIED EMPIRE £25.99 TEAM: ODE

There are some full price games that deserve the price tag, others that belong on a budget label, while some budget games that belong in the bin. Volfied is situated in the second category. Although the graphics and sound are reasonable and probably best described as 'nice', the gameplay should consist of far more than it actually does when you consider you're paying nearly £30, and sixteen levels is without doubt, embarrassingly insufficient. Volfied turns out to be OK for a while but you'll soon wish you'd bought something a little more involve ALAN

Beat that for a lengthy line! In the end, though, it's all about how much area you capture so try a more direct approach!

DLE PLAYIN

The current upheavals that plague the government of Arth can be traced back 35 years. It's strongly rumoured that the Endurium fuel was used irresponsibly and eventually led to the fall of Earth. Remains of the fuel was found in Earth's ruins, backing up this theory. As an immediate consequence, the High Council banned the use of Endurium. It soon became apparent however, that the ban had been universally ignored.

This makes the current situation infinitely worse. The loathsome Spemin empire have recently acquired some powerful technology and have discovered a fuel substance known as Shyneum. Unless we willingly enslave ourselves to the Spemin they have threatened to destroy us. To defend ourselves, we must gain access to the Shyneum fuel source to power our own weapons and hopefully gain access to the latest technology.

This is where you come in.

We've assigned our finest ship to this mission and we'd like you to take control. We'll also throw in 25,000 credits to fund the mission. Your primary objectives are to find the origin of Shyneum fuel and obtain the Spemin technology.

GROUND CONTROL

Your mission begins at Starport One. From here, you can recruit your crew and assign them to the six available posts onboard the ISS ship. All crew members have a series of skills, each of which is dependent on his race. For instance, humans natural chemists while the navigating potential of an Android cannot be overlooked. Naturally, each character builds in stature and gains greater skills as the game progresses. If you have the necessary funds, you can train your crew fully quite early on. In rather difficult.

Once you've carefully selected your crew, you must fit out your ship. Again this is dependent on the amount of money you possess. The capital provided by the Arth government is woefully inadequate, so prepare to indulge in some serious trading before even contemplating improving your ship.

practice however, this proves

You begin with a ship that's dominated with class one equipment. Just to prove how insufficient your capital really is, the class five missile launcher is 200,000 credits – eight times greater than the sum of money you begin the game with!

When your ship is fully prepared and each crew member assigned to his or her post the mission effectively begins. Before take off though, it may be worthwhile to familiarise yourself with the Starport's other modules. To access the facilities within these modules simply click on the relevant door. The modules include a bank (records your 10 most recent transactions), operations (contains messages and evaluations from Interstel) and a trade depot (buy and sell artifacts).

However, these modules don't really play any part until of course you've took the time to indulge in a touch of trading or space exploration. These two aspects form the backbone of the game.

I'LL BUY THAT FOR A DOLLAR

There are, in fact, two ways in which to discover artifacts. The first and most cumbersome method involves planet hopping and a lot of patience.

You can, if you wish fly to the Navigation is simple using the galactic map, just ensure you jot down your home coordinates! The large green area is the Cloud Nebula. When entered, strange illnesses strike down your crew!

ALL ABOARD THE ISS

SCIENCE OFFICER: The Steme Officer is responsible by guidening and analysing information about the officer will be appearable of A poorly trained officer will have difficulty assessing planet audie eas.

NAVIGATOR: Not only does he manoeuvre the say through reace, he is also responsible for raising or lowering shields, arm a say through g weapons and finally firing your ship's weapons during constant.

ENGINEER: Responsible for assessing damage to the samp and repairing it. Bar graphs indicate the extent of the damage. If a bar is completely red, then that particular section is beyond regal.

COMMUNICATIONS OFFICER: Handles of communications between your ship and alien life forms. It's advisable to fully train him early on it are aliempt to build up good relationships with neighbouries planets.

DOCTOR: The ship's doctor is responsible for diagnosing and treating illness and injuries among crew members. The higher the doctor's skill rating, the faster and more efficient the cure.

Your first encounter with an alien life form proves unsuccessful. Your communicator is under-qualified and has sadly failed to translate the message into English.

From the operations screen, you can obtain messages and planet evaluations from Interstel. Whether you choose to ignore Interstel's advice is entirely up to you.

various locations and simply search over the planet surface for the minerals

The other method, which is by far the most productive, and least time consuming is to build up a working relationship with neighbouring planets and other life forms. A good communicator should be able to withdraw information from these sources at a moments notice.

The importance of this is highlighted further when you discover that Interstel doesn't have adequate information on the profitable trade routes or markets for selling the artifacts. Which can prove, quite a hindrance.

(Right above) Landing on a planet can be rather tedious so, thankfully, Electronic Arts have provided an option to speed up the whole process by closing the viewport.

(Right) Once you've landed you can explore the planet surface in your Terrain Vehicle. In this instance, the TV has just been struck by lightning and crew member Barneswall has been injured.

You begin the game at Starport Outpost One. From here, you can sell artifacts, select and train your crew, maintain and upgrade your ship and finally launch into space via the docking bay.

A well maintained, high performance ship is vital if your mission is to succeed. It soon becomes apparent that the supplied ship is far from adequate.

Discovering the best trade routes could be the key to success. To achieve this, try to withdraw the information from aliens using a well trained communicating officer.

The personnel file allows you to create crew members and train them in several skills. The initial capital supplied by Interstel will not allow you to fully train your entire crew.

STARFLIGHT 2 ELECTRONIC ARTS £25.99 TEAM: BINARY SYSTEMS

Fans of Starflight will undoubtedly welcome this latest addition to the series, simply because we've effectively got a lot more of the same. The graphics and sound remain fairly prehistoric, the one exception to this being the alien life forms which ooze character. I feel that more disk space should be donated to this area in an attempt to create a more suitable atmosphere, rather than depending on the user. Having said that though, theblend of RPG style gameplay and space trading is unparallelled and should appeal to most.

Suspicious

A D V E N T U B E

Are we witnessing the reincarnation of the text adventure game or what! I mean, first there was Demoniak from Palace which was closely followed by Alice In Wonderland by Virgin and now we've got Suspicious Cargo, from, of all people, Gremlin! Personally I prefer the Monkey Island and Cruise For A Corpse approach, but I'm never one to go into a review narrow minded, so before we mention the adventure interface lets get the storyline out of the way.

You take up the role of Jonah Hayes, an underachiever who's damn proud of it. Your entire life has been spent paying off debts, fighting creditors and desperately trying to keep up mortgage repayments on your beloved space ship, the Lucky Lady.

For the first time in your life you've been offered a job. Universal Products (UP) has been developing a race of genetic mutants on the Planet Titan. It's Cargo become apparent however, that UP has reached the limit of its research capabilities and must transfer one mutant to Earth for the development to continue.

ANYTHING TO DECLARE SIR?

Unfortunately, both the creation and transportation of genetic mutants is illegal and, if any other organisation learned of their plans they'd undoubtedly try and sabotage the mission and wipe out the mutants altogether. Therefore, it's imperative that the mutant is smuggled. That's where you come in.

Your mission starts on the planet Titan where you find yourself holed up in the cheapest and tackiest hotel in the universe. A brief meeting with an express courier and the discovery of a few essential items sets you up nicely for the mission. Your objective: the safe and secret transportation of a genetic mutant from Titan to Earth. THE INTERFACE

Even though Suspicious Cargo centres around a basic text adventure system, it's actually possible to solve the entire adventure using the various icons and short cut techniques. You can though, if you wish, type in the commands. Many of you may say that this method is extremely prehistoric, not to mention boring.

The main screen contains a combination of text windows, icons, small digitised pictures and a compass used for direction purposes. Three of these icons allow you to rearrange the front end completely, so it's possible to have loads of text and no icons or vice versa.

The majority of icons can be found down the left hand side of the display. Because there are so many of them, a slider bar is employed to allow you to view other, offscreen icons. Selecting one icon usually leads to another, until the complete command is built in the text window.

For instance, to hand over an item to another character you must firstly

MASTERING THE ART OF MUTANT SMUGGLING

These are the environment icons which allow the layout of the screen to be altered as desired. As with most icons, these can also be activated by pressing the function keys.

The cameo windows (monitors) display all the pictures of the characters in the current location. Each monitor can be turned off using the switches to the left of each monitor.

This is the icon driver used mainly for building sentences and commands. There are three main sections: the action icons, an item list and a preposition list.

The slider bar is used to determine which icons are visible. There are so many icons it's only possible to view a third of them at any one time.

When you finally board the Lucky Lady, this icon will appear to let you know that the mapping system is readily available.

If an interactive game is available this icon will flash and bleep. You don't have to play the games, but it does help relieve the frustration of adventuring

This icon will flash and bleep when your current location has an illustration. Clicking on it will load the relevant picture.

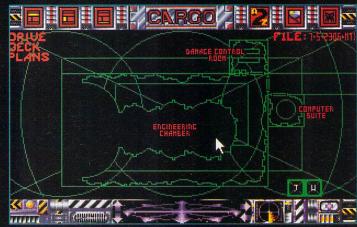

The movement panel displays all the exits from the current location. The player can click on any of the flashing arrows to change locations.

The text window speaks for itself really, yet there's more to it than meets the eye. Using the system icon you can determine the complexity of the text and the size of the typeface.

The map system is only optional when you're on board the Lucky Lady. For quick and easy movement all you need to do is click on one of the individual ship decks.

It's possible to actually increase the size of the map display. Jonah's current position is indicated by a J, any other characters are indicated by their respective initial letters.

select the give icon, which in turn would supply you with a list of characters to which you must select the required name.

THROUGH THE VIEWPORT

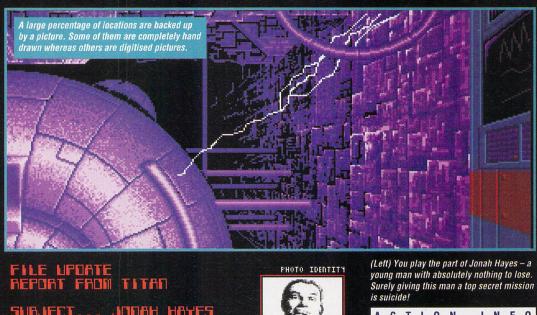

As expected, Suspicious Cargo combines text with graphics to take some of the imaginative strain away from the user. Gremlin's effort splits the graphic regions into two distinctive areas.

Firstly, the main screen consists of four fuzzing monitors, each of which is used to display any characters you may be interacting with. Secondly, there are a number of locations that are backed up by full screen graphic scenes which can be viewed by simply clicking on to an icon.

Throughout Suspicious Cargo there are a few arcade and puzzle oriented diversions from the adventuring. You don't have to take them on if you don't want to, but it does provided a pleasant change from the sometimes laborious adventuring. For instance, the first interactive is called Bypass, a simple logical game based on the flow of electricity different coloured shapes.

SUSPICIOUS CARGO GREMLIN £25.99 TEAM: EXILE & IMAGITEC

I was a bit surprised to discover that Gremlin, a company renowned for its driving games, were releasing a text adventure. It soon becomes apparent though, that this is not just a text adventure, as the various icons and sentence construction sequences make it possible to control the whole game via the mouse. Personally, I found it a lot easier and time efficient to type in some of the commands. Anyhow, this is an atmospheric combination of adventuring and logic solving which has proved to be a worthwhile venture.

The Wise One will give you a quest that you must fulfill to receive help in your quest. If you run off and get the teeth from the tigers, untold riches could be yours.

This is the Imperial Castle. Usually it is inhabited by hundreds of soldiers armed with swords and crossbows. I wonder where the little wheelers have buggered off to.

There is one friendly face in the wilderness that you must explore. The trader carries many useful items in his pack and if you have the cash they could be yours.

Do you remember a game from long ago called Battlemaster? I played it to death, many times staying up until the early hours. Now after all this time a follow-up has appeared. Will it be a worthy successor to its big brother? Here is your chance to find out.

I WANNA TELL YOU A STORY

The story behind Seigemaster is fairly straight forward, run-of-the-mill fantasy stuff. You were a member of a large tribe in an ancient land. Rather than running around being aggressive to your neighbours you chose a quieter lifestyle preferring to farm the land and be peaceful.

It was hardly a surprise that you lived happily in a beautiful kingdom. Your rivals looked at you with jealousy, they just didn't have the Percy Thrower touch.

Needless to say they used their big sticks and bad attitudes to beat you and your mates up. Being the only survivor of the massacre you were left to wander around the countryside and fend for yourself. Vengeance must be yours, you swear to kill your enemies and return home.

YOUR OUEST FOR REVENGE

Giving you a hand with your quest is the big guy from up above, The Wise One. He will give you missions to complete and once you have performed your task, such as grabbing the munchers from a pack of sabre-toothed tigers, you will be rewarded with gold and other such presents that will help you later in the adventure.

You control your character (or tribe, as you can recruit warriors) using an icon and mouse system. Simply click on the action you wish to perform and then the object and location to be affected by the action. This sort of thing has been seen many times before and is instantly accessible.

As you progress through the set quests, you and your tribe will grow in strength and power. Soon tribes of Ogres will start to threaten you, you will have to deal with the Imperial soldiers and the Goblin bandits. The merchants will be able to provide you with supplies and extra weapons if you can get the cash. War could be just around the corner, be ready for the final battle. Being the tribal leader isn't easy.

Siegemaster

Following your quest you have tracked down a group of sabre-toothed tigers. Combat is controlled via a menu screen and choosing an action is just a case of pointing and pressing.

Don't you just love a game that relies so heavily on a good storyline. I mean, take Under Pressure for instance. You play the part of a young trendy who spends most of his life hangin' out on street corners in his overpriced Reebok trainers and trendy shell suit. One day, his girlfriend gets kidnapped by a group of yobbos and dragged off to some secret hideout. Our townie ain't having any of it and immediately transforms into a fearsome armour clad robot. And that my friends, is that.

Surprisingly enough, you play the part of the robot and must battle your way through five enemy infested lands. The robot itself looks like a cross between the ED-209 from Robocop and the main sprite from Psygnosis' Killing Game Show. The only obvious difference is the sheer size of the main sprite itself. In actual fact, Under Pressure is a very big game indeed, and I'm not talking about the size of the levels. Never before have I seen a game with so many enormous sprites.

The main sprite is unbelievably big and the rest of the nasties are about the same size as an average end-of-level guardian. Apparently, the biggest sprite is 256 by 256 pixels (almost the size of a standard screen). Add to this the parallax scrolling and the 100 on screen colours and you've got a game that appears to be breaking quite a few technical barriers.

THE PRESSURE'S ON

Under Pressure is basically a horizontally scrolling shoot em-up that scrolls in all four directions. Very contradicting I know, but the action progresses from left to right only and all the nasty enemies appear from the left which is a bit fortunate really cos it's only possible to fire in that direction. The scrolling is dictated by yourself. In other words, when you move in a specific direction, the screen scrolls.

Taking control of the robot you have quite a few useful abilities. Firstly, you can walk either left or right, jump, duck and land safely following a considerable drop. By far the most useful ability available to you though is your firepower. Blessed with a standard single shot (or four way if you hold down the fire button) to begin with, you can soon increase your armament considerably by simply collecting a specific number of shells and selecting whichever weapon you can now activate.

WEAPONS OF WAR

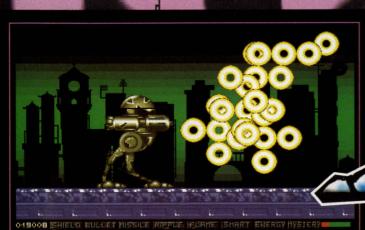

Shells are usually dropped when you destroy a nasty. The amount of shells is determined by the size of the enemy you kill. It's also possible however, to uncover a number of shells from secret locations. Some simply appear as you wander over them, others need to be hit.

At the bottom of the screen there are eight icons, each of which is highlighted in turn as you collect the shells.

To activate one of the icons, simply pull down and hold down the fire button when the required. icon is highlighted.

The armament ranges from a simple, one second shield to a wide destruction smart bomb. Other weapons include a aser, missile launcher and thrower. It's even pos enish nergy shells.

(Left) Smart bombs can only be used once, so make sure that there's enough baddies on the screen to warrant such expenditure.

That rather large beast keeps popping up and breathing fire in your general direction. Maybe it's time spend some shells and use that smart bomb.

This latter option becomes increasingly valuable as the game progresses. You begin the game with only one life. Once your energy has diminished then tils game over I'm afraid.

throughout to activate various lifting platforms squashers and teleporters. For instance, to activate a lift you have to shoot a red switch a couple of times and then leap up and down on the platform in an attempt to force it downwards to a lower section.

The same applies for squashers if you fail to turn off certain squashers, you'll be in an

UNDER PRESSURE ELECTRONIC ZOO £25.99 TEAM: ELDRITCH THE CAT

The major problem with Under Pressure is the speed at which the game runs at. The size of the sprites and the parallax scroll combine to slow down the proceedings somewhat. Otherwise we've effectively got a very different shoot'emup that looks good, sounds good and plays pretty well too. The action itself is very challenging, although I can see it becoming a little repetitive once that you've revised and mastered the level layouts. A competent shoot'em-up, which is sadly lacking in pace and all important frantic action.

Force fields are ever present throughout level one. All you have to do is run through the gap when the power's turned off. Later on in the level, you'll face four in quick succession.

To progress to another part of the same level all you need to do is blast the red switch, stand under the teleporter and pull down on the joystick.

Several of the islands have small villages on them and once you have killed all of the creatures that make their lives a misery, the locals will sell you some gear from the corner shop (for a healthy profit of course).

The start of the game depicts the nascent years of Heimdall. The better your performance at these sub-games, the better your character for the main game will be. Here you must throw axes to cut the girly's hair without drawing blood.

Yep, it's Action Compo Time once again! Fancy a trip back to the mythical realms of Viking legend? Where men were great, hairy axewielding brutes and women were... pillaged and plundered! With a little imagination a copy of Core's magnificent Heimdall could be yours! We can supply a copy of the game to the sender of the first correct entry to the following question, the rest is up to you!

When I was at school, Norse and Viking history was extremely boring. Sure, there was a bit of hacking, slashing and raping but all the stuff about Odin, Loki and the other gods was enough to make you brain dead.

Well, all I can say is history isn't what it used to be. Core Design have managed to produce a game with all of the action bits (hack and slash but unfortunately no rape) with some not so exciting bits (gods, love and magic) and they have made it all interesting.

The storvline behind Heimdall uses characters from the history books but twists the facts around so that everything fits in with the game. Basically the gods need the help of the Viking people.

Loki, an evil god, has stolen three heavenly weapons and has cast them down to the planes of existence. The gods themselves are unable to visit the planes and require a human hero to retrieve the weapons for them or the evil Loki will be able take over Valhalla.

After just a little bit of divine intervention such a warrior is finally found, a young lad going by the name of Heimdall.

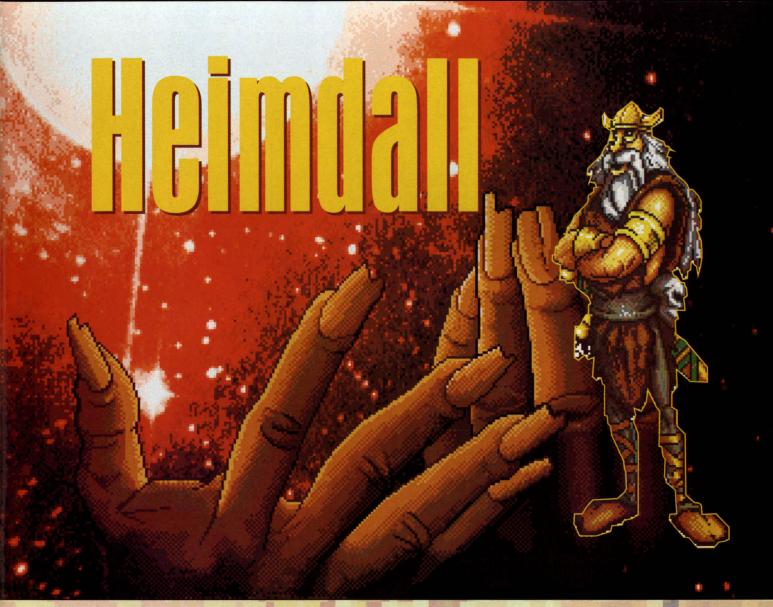

THE EARLY YEARS

You play the role of Heimdall taking control in his early years. The first stage is really three subgames and your performance in each of them will define your character's abilities for the main game. The better you are at axe

You have control over a total of six characters, although only three can ever leave the ship at any one time. Warriors, clerics and seamen are all available for employment and choosing the correct party is essential.

throwing, pig catching and brawling the higher you will find your main character's skills will be for the following adventure.

For those who want to avoid a load of joystick bending and arcade action have the option to skip past this section but will end with a rather average character, making the following game harder.

MANHOOD

Upon completing the stages that depict Heimdall's puberty (snigger, snigger) you will embark upon the quest to retrieve the gods' weapons from their scattered resting places.

You may choose a group of adventurers to accompany and aid you in your quest. Warriors, clerics, sailors and navigators are all on your prospective list of employees but, as with yourself, their abilities are restricted by your performance during the early, formative stages of the game.

Once your have a crew for your ship you can sail off towards the horizon and a life of action and adventure. Your destination can be any one of a multitude of islands as long as you have enough supplies to reach it (a navigator helps when deciding the distance you are able to travel before starving).

Each of them contains clues and treasures that will help you reach the ultimate test and one of the heavenly weapons. The order that you visit the islands is not set but items from certain islands are required in order for you to complete others.

TUNNELS AND TROLLS

Each island contains at least one underground tunnel that twists and turns in a maze like manner.
These labyrinths are

The tunnels that you must explore are full of nasty creatures and evil wizards that want to kill you (don't they have anything better to do?). Combat tests your timing, reflexes and skill just like the real thing.

This map shows the group of islands where Thor's hammer is hidden. The order in which you visit them is entirely up to you, but to complete certain puzzles you will need to acquire objects from other locations.

When you die (and you will spend a lot of time in this particular state of health) you will go to heaven to meet the gods. Unfortunately, they won't be too happy because you've just buggered up their universe by failing in your quest.

populated by all manner of creatures and monsters that you must defeat if you are to reach the treasure that awaits as your ultimate goal.

Trolls, goblins and warriors lurk in the shadows to ambush the unwary adventurer. Along the way you will also have to solve puzzles to disarm traps and open doors. Both brawn and brains are need to complete this quest.

Magic is an essential element in the game and ignoring the mystical options open to you will make the solution to your quest considerably harder. Scrolls that you will find in the dungeons allow you to zap monsters, create magical bridges, disable traps and so on.

Fighting the monsters is done on a very personal level. You and the creatures face each other in a one on one fight to the death. As the creature attacks you choose a weapon and a method of retaliation. You time your attacks by clicking on the creature at the point you wish to hit and at the right time to avoid his own hack.

The more precise your combat is the greater the damage you will inflict on the creature. If you are victorious you will be able to proceed even deeper into the maze and further into your quest.

ACTION INFO

HEIMDALL Core design £30.99 Team: 8th day

Core Design have built a good reputation for themselves over the past year or so. Thunderhawk was one of the best flight sims to date and now that Heimdall has appeared it looks as if it will cause as much upset. It is basically an isometric version of the classic game Dungeon Master. The ideas behind the gameplay and puzzles are very similar and anybody who enjoyed DM will find it right up their street. On top of this you also have a series of sub-games and arcade sequences that add variety to the gameplay. The 3D view works very well, being very atmospheric. This coupled with the sound effects, music, puzzles, arcade sequences, and superb artwork makes it among the best releases of the year. Heimdall is a truly amazing game that nobody should be without.

A Breed

Stone awoke immediately to the sound of Johnson clumsily rattling an ammunition clip into his gun.

With an expression serious enough to send a chill down Stone's back, he saw that something was wrong, drastically wrong. "What the hell is going on here?" demanded the battle scarred mercenary.

"It seems that we're not going home yet, buddy," replied Johnson, straining to smile. "We've been given a n o t h e r assignment. It's probably nothing but still, I think, we'd better investigate the situation."

"Investigate what? Just where are we going?" pleaded Stone impatiently.

"Intex Space Research Centre 4 hasn't responded to any of the transmitted messages. Could be something, could be nothing.
We merely happen to be in the space cruiser nearest to the vicinity. Bad luck, eh?"

"Power's down, maybe.
Damn it! Why does this have to happen
when I should be looking forward to a well earned rest and some time off?"

But Stone that knew he had to go – this was what the Federation paid him for: to investigate possible trouble situations and eradicate the causes of those problem, as quickly and cleanly as possible.

SOON AFTER...

Johnson was first to set foot on solid ground. He surveyed the surroundings then signalled to Stone. Stone appeared, brandishing a light automatic hand-gun. As they stood side by side, Johnson whispered, "Where is everybody? I don't like this, I don't like it one bit..."

Before another word was uttered, Stone unleashed a volley of bullets into the creature that had suddenly sprang from behind a wall. Johnson turned and spat death at the cluster of aliens that had emerged from seemingly out of nowhere. "God damn," yelled Stone, "they're everywhere!"

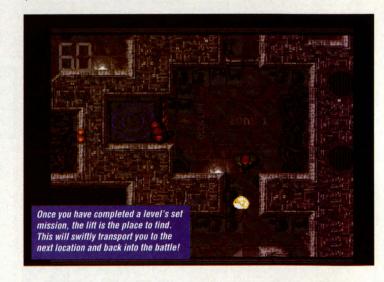

BLAST THE BREED

Alien Breed is a one or two player eight-way scrolling shoot'em-up that is played in the Gauntlet theme. Each level places you in a predicament that must be resolved. For example, you might just have to escape from a level or, in contrast, you may have to activate a reactor and then retreat to the next level before impending explosion. Whatever your task is, the levels are swarming with aliens and other hostile galactic foes. With limited ammunition and energy that depletes every time you come into contact with an enemy, you know your chances are never good!

However, conveniently scattered about the levels are extra ammunition clips, special keys to open security doors, medical kits to replenish your energy and money which is of great importance.

Money can be invested at computer terminals that are found in various places, fixed to walls. Here, you can buy maps, ammunition, medical kits, extra lives, improve your firepower and so forth. You'll need to purchase as much assistance as possible!

So you're thinking, "It sounds great, but these guys are new. What talents do they have? Can they produce something as good as AA say it is?" Well, here are the facts, make up your own mind!

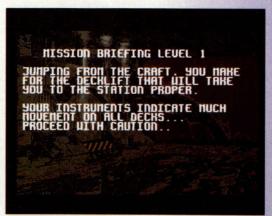

THE BODS BEHIND BREED

Team 17 are based in Wakefield, drawing their skills from Sweden, France, Canada, Germany, Norway and North America, in the form of programmers, graphic artists, and musicians.

With Alien Breed, the development team have created a game that runs at 50 frames per second with 32 colour sprites. Inspiration derives from the team's favourite games and movies.

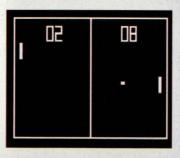

There should be no doubt in your mind about the quality of the game as, these guys are talented!

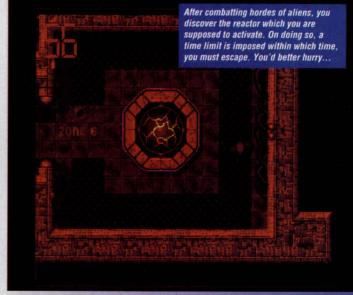

(Left) Upon accessing one of the many computer terminals about the levels, you can relax with the Intex entertainment system. Not the most inspiring of past-times, is it?

(Left) Computer terminals also contain maps of the level you are currently exploring. This allows you to plan your route, taking into consideration the number of keys you possess.

Look carefully and you'll see an item to collect. This is actually a key, but you can also collect extra ammunition and credits with which to buy objects of use from weapons to hand-held maps.

You dash around a corner and unleash a flurry of bullets at the allen with its back to you. It didn't stand a chancel

By shooting the lock mechanism, the door will shut behind you and, consequently, prevent any alien from following. However, this also means you can't return this way.

Open the door to enter the small room. Inside, there is a medical kit which will replenish your energy to a certain degree. Try not to get trapped inside!

Aagh! You're surrounded! Have you got the ammo to shoot your way out of trouble? Have you got the ability to twist and turn to escape? Have you got the strength to barge a path into the open? Exciting stuff, eh?

So much for trying to grow your hair! It's probably been singed off your scalp by now! Serves yourself right for walking into the flames from the spacecraft's engine. Hope you requested a cremation and not a burial service!

ACTION

Taste and feel the intense, absorbing atmosphere as you participate in one of the most enjoyable explore and blast games to be seen on the market. Graphically exciting and sonically stimulating, Alien Breed will adequately fulfill all of your gaming needs. The challenge of each level is always a great pleasure and you can be assured of many fraught and fun moments. This is a great title that should be supported by you, the wonderful games buying public, if you want to support good, classy and professional products. Alan

A good fish can never resist a challenge and our James is definitely a good fish. I mean this is a fish that cares about the environment. Only last year he was spotted on a number of occasions retrieving dumped nuclear waste from the ponds of Britain, rescuing his fishy chums from the clutches of evil and wiping out environment threatening oil rigs.

As you can imagine, this certainly took it out of him. After a short break though, he's back and this time he's angry! Dr Maybe and his brainwashed minions have infiltrated a giant arctic toy factory and sabotaged the entire stock. Once these toys brought joy and humour to the lives of spoilt brats throughout the world.

These days they roam the streets injecting terror into the lives of the children that they once brought so much pleasure to.

FISH IN ARMOUR

James Pond ain't having any of it! In an attempt to thwart the evil Dr Maybe once and for all, he's changed his image and his name!

Out goes the tuxedo, in comes the electrical armour. Ladies and gentleman, please welcome Robocod.

Playing the part of Robocod, you must enter the evil Dr Maybe's arctic stronghold and wipe out the hoards of killer toys before they march all over the lives of innocent kiddies everywhere.

The action takes place within a myriad of platforms, all of which are set in an abundance of levels, bonus stages, sub-games and secret rooms. To complete your mission outright, you must explore the multitude of levels and destroy the toys wherever you find them.

INSPIRAL BACKDROPS

If you've glanced at the screen shots or played James Pond, you'll be well aware that Robocod is a platform style game with knobs on. Cos not only does the screen scroll in all eight directions, it also scrolls the various bitplanes individually to create some of the weirdest parallax effects ever seen on an Amiga.

This sort of thing has been seen many times before in demos and even in the Soup Dragons' videos but never in a platform game of this size or genre.

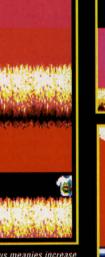

While this looks and sounds very impressive on paper, it proves to be the games biggest downfall. Whenever the screen gets in the slightest bit crowded, the update and immense playability simply grinds to a halt.

In this unfortunate case, it takes a while to recover and continue its fluidity. Anyway, lets not get too critical because the game's good points can easily (left) The first guardian is easy meat. Simply stand on the platforms and jump on his head several times. Eventually, he'll curl up and die, miserably.

(Below) Bonus stages. I'm glad to say are in abundance. In this particular one, you must run along the top of a speeding train, dodging the birds and punks.

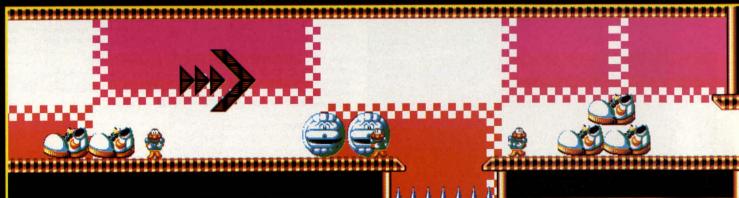

As you progress the level layouts increase in complexity and the various meanies increase in numbers somewhat. Nobody said it was going to be easy.

(Below) A typical bonus level includes several secret objects, most of which contain bonus points. Unfortunately though, not all of them are friendly. For instance, the bottle with the skull and crossbones spot welded on the side certainly spells danger.

outweigh any of its bad points.

A FLICK OF THE TAIL END

Controlling Robocod is a stroll. The joystick is used to move Cod in all the usual directions, while the firebutton employs several features. The first and most powerful device is your body extension kit. By simply holding down the firebutton it's possible to keep your feet safely on the ground and extend skywards searching for platforms to grab hold of. Alternatively, you can pull down on the joystick and hold down fire to survey the surrounding area.

Killing the fearsome licorice allsorts, tin soldiers and cuddly teddies is easy in theory. You simply jump and land on their heads. If you pull down before landing, you can stamp that little bit harder! Unfortunately, the curious paths these baddies follow makes it a lot harder.

To help, there are quite a few bonus goodies to be picked up which do all sorts of lovely jubbly things such as give Cod extra lives, make our fishy pal invulnerable or provide bonus points. You can also make use of redundant toys. OVERALL S C O R E

For instance, it's possible for you to fly a biplane and kill enemies from above.

Tut, tut, tut! Some game designers eh? See a good idea and what do they do? Nick it, fortunate enough in life to have played the top console games Mario Brothers or Sonic The quessed that Robocod draws many of its influences from these classics.

For the uninitiated among you, the freaky, scrolly backdrops and the 'oh, so fast speed scroll' have both been thieved from Sonic, while the 'stamp on every nasty's head' idea and the 'headbutt bonus blocks' was pulled from Mario. So now you know!

In true Mario Brothers style you can headbutt any blocks you see in an attempt to reveal bonus objects. Unfortunately, the blocks can only be used once

Like a real secret agent, Robocod has the ability to fly planes and drive cars like no other fish. Be careful though, that tower's getting a little close.

Headbutt secret blocks and magic boxes to reveal bonus objects. The object may be a nasty or a poisonous substance Jump on the head's of unsuspecting nasties. By pulling down it's possible to create more force and inflict greater damage.

Pull down the joystick and hold down the firebutton to scroll the screen a little without actually moving.

By extending the lower half of his body, Robocod can extend upwards and hopefully latch onto an above platform.

Not another cute platform game, you cry! Yes, and what a beauty it is too. OK, it's not entirely free from faults and most of the game's good points were nicked from the console market. Personally, I couldn't give a monkeys about the latter point, because Robocod is a graphical and aural treat that plays incredibly well. The revamped character and improved nasties ensure that James Pond is a game well past its sell buy date. If, you can put the technical hindrance to one side, get out and buy Robocod now! You won't be disappointed. PETE

It was inevitable that at least one of the many software publishers would introduce a sophisticated racing game that detracted from the usual straightforward accelerate, left, right' style. While Gremlin have set the standard for the racey, arcade type of game, Microprose have opted for the more realistic simulation method, using the world of Formula One as their theme.

Formula One Grand Prix is the result of many months of research and development by both Microprose and programmer, Geoff Crammond. The name Crammond may already be familiar to you as he was the mastermind behind Stunt Car Racer, the popular one-on-one dragster like challenge.

The game features a full season of circuits against a line up of formidable opposition in the form of Ferraris, McLarens and so forth. Although the real driver names are not present within the game, you can actually change the names yourself. This way, whenever, in reality, drivers change the team they race for, you'll be able to incorporate the changes into your own computer game.

DEJA VU

Each racetrack has been mapped exactly to how it exists in real life. You'll recognise the Monaco tunnel as well as the perilous bends in Hockenheim. Chase Senna around Silverstone and pass the crashed car of Mansell at Suzuka! With 16 circuits to compete in, you'll be battling to gain as many points as possible every time.

Controlling your F1 car is only possible via possible via joystick. Pushing up accelerates while pulling back brakes. To change down through your six gears without braking is possible by allowing your joystick to centre and pressing fire. As would be expected, the combination of an up movement with a press of the fire button changes up a gear.

Your car can be modified to suit the track and weather conditions. This is achieved by your selection of tyres where you can choose different compounds or even special special short life qualifying tyres for when you participate in the preliminary race in your effort to achieve pole position. Pit stops, beside enabling you to change worn or unsuitable tyres, give you the chance to repair any damage that may have occurred due to colliding with other racers or ramming into walls.

Damage can have various negative effects, for example,

- 1) AUTO BRAKES. The computer will automatically slow you down should you be too fast.
- 2) AUTO GEARS. Alter the gearbox to automatic from manual.
- SELF CORRECTING SPINS. When you swerve off the track, the computer will immediately, if somewhat slowly, turn your car to face the correct direction.
- 4) INDESTRUCTIBILITY. You're protected to an extent should you barge into an object!
- 5) BEST LINE. A dotted white line appears in the road. This is the racing line that you should follow during the race. It's not absolutely vital that you do, but it helps!
- 6) The gear the computer recommends you race in!
- 7) When lit, your mechanics are advising that you should make a pit stop.
- 8) Illustrates which areas of your car are damaged.
- Determine the difficulty level by defining how good the opposition is. One green light indicates easy whereas the maximum of five lights signifies the best.
- 10) A horizontal line means all cars and drivers are equal. In contrast, a sloping line indicates the actual performance level as relevant for cars and drivers in the 1991 season. Alternatively, a very uneven line signifies that the whole affair is totally random: good drivers may be in poor cars and vice versa.

Grand Privilla

should your nose fins become seriously dented, this will affect the downforce on your car. As a consequence, your traction won't be as good.

Fortunately, there is a diagram of your car on the dashboard where yellow lights indicate which areas of your vehicle have been reshaped without your consent!

There is an interesting element in the game that enables two players to compete in the same race. Based on a time share system, the two player mode is rather strange! At the beginning of a race, you can set the amount of time for which you want to control your car. If, for instance, you decide upon 30 seconds, player one races for that length of time.

After that, control switches to player two's car who now has control for his 30 seconds.

Meanwhile, the computer intervenes to guide player one's highly tuned car until it is his turn to take over again.

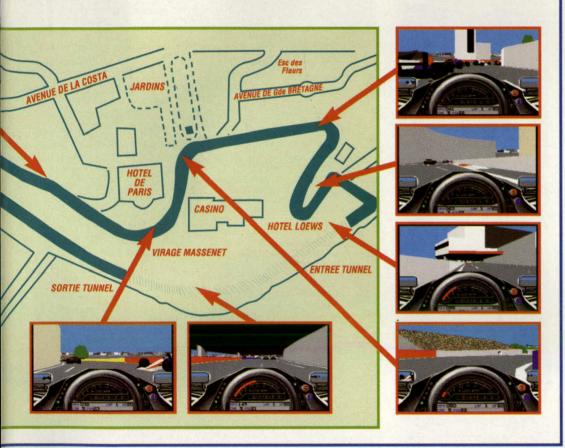

For information and inspiration, Microprose studied video tapes from televised racing events. Honda were also an important source with the Footwork team having input at the later stages to help add the final touches.

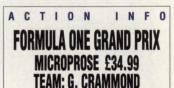

With the combined experience of Microprose, Honda and Footwork, you can be assured of one of the best representations possible of the exhilarating Formula One sport. Break a leg!

DICING WITH DEATH AROUND MONACO

As one of the finest racing simulators ever produced, Formula One Grand Prix requires patience and perseverence for you to squeeze every possible iota of enjoyment from the game. With some of the most impressive vector filled graphics seen at such speed, F1GP steadily draws you into the game until you reach a stage where you feel certain you're sitting in a F1 cockpit! A full season and a very useful 'Save game' option push the game further into the heights of our racing league. For excitement and authenticity, this is definitely the one. Alan Upon colliding with another car, there is a minor pile-up on the track. Marshalls will appear, waving flags to warn other drivers to proceed with caution. If you're really unlucky, you may be pushed off the track and even holsted away by a crane.

Has anybody else noticed the strange increase in PD games lately? Every other PD disk that makes its way onto my desk is a game! Thankfully though, we've also received enough animations to make the page the slightest bit interesting and not just another page full of cheap game reviews.

DE LES

1 This time Chuck finds himself taking Arnie's roll in Total Recall, falling into a vat of acid and taking revenge on an F-15 strike aircraft. The disk (number H654) features seven short animations and is available from NBS.

Considering we only reviewed the Assassin's game disk volume one last month, it's surprising to receive volume two so soon. This offering features a Galaxians rip-off, Space Invaders, Missile Command, Bally, Think Ahead and a simple maze game. Thanks to Strictly PD for the disk number G320.

3 I hated Rubik's cube, Cubulus is very similar, apart from the fact that this particular rip-off is played in 2D. Infuriating puzzle action available from ABPD.

If playing the part of a gunner in the raids over Pearl Harbour turns you on, you'll probably enjoy Pom Pom Gunner from CLS. It's a sort of cross between Operation Wolf and Beach head featuring excellent digitised graphics and sound. Harmless, addictive fun!

5 The New Movies disk from CLS features several short, yet sweet animations. Available from CLS, disk number 1071.

6 Eric Schwartz is rapidly becoming a cult figure in Public Domain. His latest animation, titled ATF Agility follows the antics of two aircraft battling for air supremacy. Hilarious action for one meg users, available from NBS.

Having faced the titanic task of returning from the wrong side of time and space, the Red Dwarf has made a galactical leap into the heart of PD. This demo follows the exploits of Red Dwarf's crew when they stumble upon a White Hole.

Available once again from NBS.

HAS THE 1991/2 FOOTBALL LEAGUE/NFL PLAYER DATA

(The Midnight Oil) treats soccer in the sophisticated way Americans treat their national sports."

The Guardian
THE GAME. Everyone has his own ideas on what makes a soccer team "tick". Here is the opportunity to put into practice your own ideas. Operating from the English 1st Division you must build a squad to challenge for the league title, the FA and League Cups and the 3 European trophies.
And as players age, rebuild the team while holding off

SQUADS/TRANSFER MARKET. In a 3 squad system (1st team squad, reserve squad and youth squad), use the continuous intake of youth players and training program to create a squad whose skills reflect your ideas. Supplement these skills with carefully selected transfer market acquisitions. As they age, veterans fade and youngsters develop, keep a sharp eye on the changing skills of your team. SKILLS. All players have a balance of 5 skills (no "skill levels") which you must discover by experimenting with your team. Even more important will be your judgement about the effect of the particular team balance or skill combination on the outcome of a match, and subsequently a season of football. Suitable training can develop/enhance skills or sustain the stamina of ageing/injured players

MATCH/STATS. Your judgement will be put to the test in this unique 4 minute match/stats simulation against accurately simulated opposition. This is the measure of your team and your most reliable source of information. There are displays of: match flow, two teams, player-with-the-ball, injuries, discipline, substitutions, in-match tactics, goalscorers, possession breakdown and performance assessment.

WHAT IS DIFFERENT ABOUT THIS GAME?

Sophisticated "Al" techniques replace "skill levels". Judgement replaces mental arithmetic. Intelligence replaces luck. Division One 92 is a simulation of the world of the soccer manager. Its fascination comes from its closeness to the real thing, its addictive quality is that of soccer itself.

"When it comes to the 4th down, HeadCoach has it." "HeadCoach", "TV Sports Football"

head to head (Pop Comp)

THE GAME. HeadCoach is the complete American Football simulation. You take charge of the latest recruit to the NFL, and through skillful design of gameplans and the use of the college draft, build up a 45 man squad to keep your fans happy and win the SuperBowl. Unlimited seasons and ageing players produce a realistic game of fluctuating fortunes.

THE MATCH. The match is a game in itself taking about 40 minutes to complete. With 26 offensive plays and 21 defensive plays, there is ample scope to match your gameplan to the skills of your squad, and exploit the weaknesses of the opposition. It's here where the strengths and weaknesses of your players are highlighted.

TRAINING CAMP. An opportunity to assess your players before they take the field. The appropriate coach will give you his view of the current form of any of the players and how they are performing in training. A 40 yard timed run will reveal their sharpness. Wide receivers, running backs, linebackers, cornerbacks and safeties need to shine here.

COLLEGE DRAFT. During the 16 match season, plus whatever playoff matches you achieve, you will find yourself praying for a second classy running back or wide receiver, or need to beef up your offensive line (too many sacks). The college draft should be used to find those stars of the future and make sure they're playing for you.

STATISTICS. The statistics centre will encapsulate your team's and your player's season. Total yards, rushing yards, passing yards, kick-off returns, punt returns (and averages for all these), interceptions, sacks... all these are kept for each match, the whole season, for the team and for each player. American Football is a game of stats and we retain that.

Late Kick Off

Once again only one page has been allocated to Late Kick Off as there aren't many games out there at the moment — everyone's obviously waiting for the Christmas rush. This month we have Baby Jo from Loriciel, Rugby World Cup from Domark, Hagar The Horrible from Demonware and role-playing action in Shadow Sorcerer from US Gold/SSI, Read on...

BABY JO Loriciel — £25.99

If you're really into crappy nappies and screaming little urchins then Baby Jo is the game for you. It tells of a cutesy-cutesy baby who has lost his way and is desperate to get back home to mummy. Unfortunately, luck is against our fat little friend and he's about to be hounded by some of the nastiest, well nasties, ever assembled.

As he trundles his way across the horizontally scrolling landscape he must leap on the platforms to reach nappies and milk bottles while avoiding the stinging bees, egg dropping cranes and killer flowers. It's a jungle out there!

HOME

- Cutesy graphics that are nicely animated
- · Excellent sound effects

AWAY

RUGBY THE WORLD CUP DOMARK — $24.99

As Rugby's all the rage at the moment what better time to release a computer game simulating of the sport than now? And we must confess it's pretty darn good. Looking very similar to Kick Off, Rugby simulates the game in which rather large, brainless guys get together and kick seven bells out of each other as well as chasing a rather odd shaped ball.

Control is easy and the whole product is extremely playable. If you're into Rugby then this is the definite simulation for you.

HOME

Clear and concise play screen
 Smooth scrolling and realistic sprites

AWAY

· Only for Rugby fans

SHADOW SORCERER US GOLD/SSI — $27.99

SSI have really proven themselves to be the master of role-playing games on the home computer and Shadow Sorcerer enforces this reputation even further.

Graphically the game is superb and all the controls are easily accessed through the use of the mouse. The structure of the game is superb and the player is led slowly but confidently into more and more adventures that guarantee hours of fun.

HOME

Superb graphics
 Offers a long term challenge
 Extremely easy to get straight into

AWAY

HAGAR THE HORRIBLE Demonware — § 25.99

As usual, the hen-pecked Hagar is in the dog house with his wife Helga. To get back in favour (and get his dinner) he has got to travel in search of a number of different items that Helga wants and as we all know, what Helga wants Helga gets!

Basically a platform romp, Hagar must set off in his viking ship and travel to several different islands to collect the goods Helga requires. Unfortunately, other vikings stand in his way and he'll have to use his trusty sword with great skill if he is to succeed.

HOME

 Great similarity with original characters Nice in between scenes
Difficulty set just right

AWAY

Not a great challenge to hardened gameplayers

CHILDISH RAMBLINGS

Being a reader of four other Amiga mags as well as your own I couldn't help but write after reading your letters page.

Out of the letters you published you had a certain Diego Vivanca (any relation to the hand of god merchant) whining on about "where's my naffing game, 'cos I sat up past my bedtime sussing out the solution to that game everyone knows about anyway."

As for the send me the game bit I thought your reply "Well get your backside down to the nearest retailer and buy it!" in not so many words was the perfect antidote to his wanton ramblings!

Onto the second letter "This kid at school reckons Ataris are better than Amigas – BOSH!", lovely answer Ste (is that really his name?). Lets call him Toki – a lot more apt don't you think?

Anyway, don't fret, the other letters were OK. But what I'm trying to draw your attention to is the mentality level of these idiots. Perhaps it would be better if you printed informative letters rather than these childish ramblings.

Don't want to sound like a grissler so congrats on a great mag (your GTGA section is the nuts!). Long live Amiga Action. Give us a game. No! BOSH!

Sean Clifton, Enfield

Thanks Sean, we're glad you like the letters page, well, half of it anyway. Admittedly, the letters we received for that issue were incredibly bad, hence the reason we offered free games to interesting letters on that very page. Since the offer began, the volume of letters received has increased somewhat, yet the majority of them are either downright dull, or as you say, childish ramblings. So come on boys and girls, think before you write and you could win yourself a game worth over thirty quid!

In the meantime Sean, we've decided that your mindless ramblings deserve to win a prize. Why, I don't know, especially as we had to cut half your letter to avoid insult!

TEACHER, TEACHER

You may find this interesting as I am a mother of three children and not a teenage male as most of your readers seem to be. But to get back to why I have written to you. There seems to be plenty of game reviews which are very worthwhile but I would really like to see you review educational software.

I realise this would not interest most of your readers but please spare a page every now and again for us poor mums who have spent a fortune on educational software, only to find that it's a total rip off!

V. Park, Gillingham

We don't cover educational software mainly because we like to concentrate on leisure software. However, that doesn't mean to say that educational software reviews are out of the question.

From time to time we do find ourselves covering such products as Dpaint and AMOS.

In future, if we've got the space available and the publishers in question send us their educational products we may consider covering them. Remember though, games will always take priority. In the meantime, we reckon that the Funschool series from Europress Software is the mutts nuts!

BOOKLET BLUES

I am not impressed with your coverdisk booklet idea. I am sure there must be many more readers like myself who do not wish to cut up their copy of Amiga Action and do not happen to possess a photocopier! I would prefer clear segments on the page showing a short clear description of what the game's about, loading instructions and a guide to the various controls.

On the more positive side though, I must admit I'm well pleased with the variety of different styles you mange to get hold of for the coverdisks.

Nigel Parker, Basingstoke

We don't expect you to cut up your magazine, it's just an option. Many people enjoy keeping their disks for reference purposes and therefore, we thought that providing a booklet to store with the disk may help. We also ensure that every coverdisk page is printed on the reverse side of an advert, so you're not losing any editorial content.

Secondly, the pages are laid out in such a way that the information remains accessible to those who don't want to take out the page. All the segments you mentioned above are provided, so just what the hell are you going on about?

A SMALL PERCENTAGE

Your review of Gremlin's Lotus Challenge 2 clearly stated that the game received 95%. Yet Gremlin's advertising campaign states that you reviewed the game and gave it 96%. Who are we supposed to believe, you or Gremlin?

Neil Meredith, Torpoint

Well, we are fussy aren't we? I mean, let's all look through magazines for stupid mistakes. Haven't you got anything better to do with your time Mr Meredith?

Actually, it was our mistake and not Gremlin's. When they rang us up to find out what percentage it got, we said 96%.

When our artist set the page, he put a five after the nine instead of a six. How silly of him!

(Don't try and get out of it by blaming me, you little wheeler! – The Artist.)

EXCLUSIVES TOO EARLY?

Why do you insist on reviewing games several months before they appear on the shelves?

There's nothing more annoying than reading a review of a potentially excellent game only to go down to the shops and discover that it's not out for another five weeks or so.

Take for example Final Fight, reviewed in Amiga Action issue 24 and released in October. Flight Of the Intruder was another offender reviewed way back in issue 19 and only now has it hit the shelves. Who's to blame you or the software companies?

One last question before I go. When can we expect to see Formula One Grand Prix on the shelves?

Dennis Wild, Burnley

Actually Dennis, we're both guilty. Naturally, the software houses in question love to milk as much hype as possible out of us computer magazines and in our quest for exclusive news, previews and reviews we happily oblige.

Admittedly, we did go way over the top with Flight Of The Intruder we expected to see earlier this year but didn't because of a series of technical problems.

Unfortunately, this reviewing system is here to stay so you'll have to put up with it, I'm afraid. And finally, the answer to your question: Formula One Grand Prix should be released about now.

In the old days destroying a virus was simplicity itself. All you needed was a decent virus checker to find the monster and you were off. Once caught, simply installing a standard boot block would put the beast to the sword and leave your now healthy disk squeaky clean.

THE BEAST BYTES BACK

Unfortunately about a year and a half ago, the new thinking infections reared their ugly heads. Yes folks, link and file viruses were born. Only a few at first but now they're taking over and old favourites like Steve Tibett's VirusX 4 can't do a thing about them. Virus X could spot a few of the first invaders but now it's like trying to bail out a sinking ship with a sievel

What's required is a new hero and hopefully we've found him. John Veldthuis' Virus Checker v5.26 fits the bill perfectly. It detects almost every file virus and is constantly upgraded to keep pace with its ever changing enemy.

Its big advantage comes from the ability to detect and remove the evil Saddam virus, the most recent and worst of all the digital destroyers.

Like the Lamer Return file virus, Saddam hides himself on an infected disk by posing as the disk-validator file within the L: directory. Once hidden, he alters the Bitmap so that unless Saddam is running, the disk will appear to be invalidated.

THE DEVIL INSIDE...

Paul Austin mounts his trusty steed and sets out to vanquish the viruses.

This causes the disk-validator – alias Saddam-to-be-activated, thus running the virus, which then proceeds to alter various data blocks so that AmigaDOS won't recognise them without Saddam. When the virus finally explodes, so does your entire disk. All that's left is a message explaining just what Saddam has done to your favourite floppy.

Another excellent checker, due primarily to its thirty second vector check, is Mike Hansel's KillDaVirus III. It recognises a relatively small number of viruses, but it does have a wonderful habit of checking memory every thirty seconds. As soon as it locates an invaded vector all hell breaks loose, leaving you in no doubt that it's time to kick some crawling ass.

PROTECT AND SURVIVE

First and foremost always writeprotect every disk you possibly can. If you can live without your name on the high score table, do just that.

Next, ensure that all disks you have permission to back up are kept safe in a distant disk box, using the copies for all dayto-day use. Whenever you do use originals always make a 15 SCR x 6, NorthStar x 2, Byte Bandit x 2, DHSH, SYSTEM Z, Revenge x 2, Obelis UltraFox, Lamer Exterminator x 3, DiskDoktors, Gadaffi, Target, Turk, Kauki, HCS, 16 bit crew, Graffiti, BlackFlash, HicroSystems, Phantastograph, Timebomb, Joshua, Scarface, MarHawk, WKili, Mids, RevengeBootLoader, Pentagon Circle, Julie, IRG x 2, TTVI, Lamer Exterminator trojan.

second cold re-boot between it and any other software.

Always remember that every single new disk, no matter where it comes from, is a potential virus carrier, even those bought direct from PD libraries or magazines, some of whom have had problems with viruses on their coverdisks.

Most importantly of all, arm yourself with an up to date virus killer. Don't rely on the few commercial killers as they're usually hopelessly out of date. Regularly update your checker and always test incoming disks before falling into the trap of the warm re-boot.

All decent checkers produce a vector alert which will more often than not include an address in memory where it's found the suspect program. If you have a memory monitor, you can examine the contents at and around that address. In Saddam's case this will reveal a screen full of hex gobbledigook with the word SADDAM in ascii text somewhere near the end.

When text such as this appears, you know you've got problems. A combination of KDV III, or another constant memory checker such as Zero virus III, plus Virus Checker v5.26 should be defence enough against the vast majority of crawling killers.

HIDING IN THE HEX

Many viruses are written by people whose chief desire is to be noticed and they usually contain ascii text denoting the fact that your machine has a virus. This text is presented in the boot block as simple ascii, and can be easily spotted. Thanks to KDV III or Zero virus III which allow you to examine the boot block of any disk and install a new one if at all necessary.

If however, you're dealing with a file virus you'll need a Hex editor such as NewZap to examine the suspect file to find out if it's an impostor that's merely posing as a harmless program.

Remember not all unusual boot blocks are necessarily viruses. As a result if you install a standard boot block on a commercial disk it's more than likely it will never run again. ALWAYS keep commercial software protected...

All of the aforementioned killers and utilities are available from any decent PD library. Spending a few pounds now could save you hundreds or even thousands later on.

LATE NEWS

News, news — that's all we seem to have space for these days. This month's And Finally takes an updated look at two of Gremlin's soon-to-be-released games — Harlequin and Video Kid. Both have been previewed in Amiga Action before but we thought you might like to see how they have both been progressing over the past couple of months.

hen Harlequin returned home to Chimerica he very quickly realised that something was terribly wrong. Everything was silent, even the old clock which had kept perfect time for centuries had stopped.

He remembered as a child how he was able to roam freely around the intricate passageways and corridors where doors did not exist. He was a King of his own castle, Hear but now before him there was a your visible means of access.

Playing Harlequin, your task is to find and replace the four segments of Chimerica's broken door locked steadfastly with no

Heart. You have many means at your disposal. Ropes to swing on, death slides, trampolines and even a kite that the Harlequin can fly on. The passage of time has been halted and only Harlequin with his acrobatic skills can restart it!

Harlequin has really been dealt from the bottom of the deck this time. But jumping from card to card he can make his way toward a segment of the broken heart.

Walking on telephone wires is impossible for most, but Harlequin can do it blind folded. Be careful though, as electrical currents often come along the wires.

something. He bunged in a video and pressed play.

All of a sudden he was not in his bedroom anymore but somewhere that he had never seen before. Then he realised – he was inside the TV set. How would he possibly get out?

for you.

Video Kid liked nothing better than watching TV. His girlfriend had left him, and none of his friends ever bothered to come round any more. But Video Kid didn't care, for all that mattered to him was his television set.

Then, one day his parents bought him a video recorder for his Birthday. The Kid was overjoyed as now he could watch a decent film any time he wanted — if only he knew what was in store. One night he woke with a mad urge to watch
